The opening ceremony was delayed half an hour by one vicious form of pollution—a traffic jam. The gathering, the United Nations Conference on the Human Environment, is being attended by 112 nations including the Vatican. Its immediate purpose is not to stop pollution but to establish international machinery to prevent mankind from doing in Itself of future generations through reckless waste.

All the Communist nations save China, Yugoslavia and Romania are boycotting the conference because East Germany was not given voting rights. Conference organizers left ooe vice-presidency and one vice-chairmanship of a committee open, but hopes were fading fast that the other Communist nations would show up. There was no explanation why Albania, which usually goes along with China, was not present.

The UN conference was sharply attacked by Barry Commoner, a scientist at Washington University in. St. Louis. Speaking at an unofficial "environment forum." he charged that the UN was ignoring the real issues of the environment, nuclear war being first and foremost.

He charged the United States was conducting in Southeast Asia "the first ecological war since the wars against the American Indians" and he found it inconceivable the UN was avoiding this. Prof. Commoner was indirectly answered by conference secretarygeneral Maurice F. Strong, who "We canoot deal with all the ills of the world."

These are subjects for the future. Few if any practical gains will result from this 11-day conference, and the Swedes have all but given up hope of agreement on a measure against dumping at sea, thanks to American objections that the time was not ripe. "This would create an extremely difficult situation for the government in paying its bills and conducting its business," Mr. Walker said.

He and George P. Shultz, Treasury Secretary-designate, urged fiscal restraint by Congress approving legislation that could affect the budget. They warned that over-spending could set off a new round of inflation. #### Opposition Calls On Brandt Again To Yield Office ship thus renewed the demand for Mr. Brandt's resignation It made in mid-May, after opposition abstention permitted the lower house of parliament to ratify the nonaggression treaties with Russia and Poland The opposition challenge stemmed from the fact that in the Bundestag, parliament's lower house, recent votes showed the government and opposition with 248 votes each. Defections from Mr. Brandt's coalition during three weeks of political uproar that preceded the ratification vote led to the deadlock.

Government spokesmen have stated repeatedly that Mr. Brandt has no intention of resigning.

Political Secretariat

But Belgian sources said Mr. Pompidou had warned there would be no summit if the political secretariat which is to be added eventually to the European institutions is not set up in Paris. Other market members Germany, Italy, the Netherlands, Beigium and Luxembourg—agree the secretariat should be established in Brussels, near the other institutions elready working there. [The French are determined to get the secretariat for Paris, and are continced that in the end they will get their way. It is unlikely, however, that this dis-pute would lead to the cancellation of the summit, for it is at the summit that the fical decision will be taken. The main objections to Brussels as a site are two in Frencia eyes: One, France does not want the political body in close contact with the EEC Commission. The second reason is that France believes the body ehould be in a country not intimately connected with NATO activities. In French eyes this leaves only Paris and Dublin, and there are no chances of it going to Dublin.] Other Conditions Possible Ralf Dahrendorf, EEC commissioner for foreign relations, said new French conditions for a summit conference would automatically bring new conditions from others.

He said he did not believe the summit itself was in danger but its preparation was not being simplified. -

At its two-day meeting, the council will discuss trade agreements to be concluded with European countries not applying for market membership and adapta-tion of agreements with Mediterranean countries to new conditions resulting from the enlargement of the community.

But the issue of the direct demand passes threatened to a crisis immediately with the start of the long-awaited eccord signed Saturday by U.S., British, French and Soviet foreign ministers.

It calls for allowing West Berliners to apply by mail or in person at five pass offices—in the latter case entitled to receipt of an enabling pass immediately.

A spokesman at one of the five stations said, "We have an unexpectedly large crowd of pass seekers . . . the East German officials have granted only two passes so far . . , in cases of deaths in the family in East Berlin."

These passes come under the category of hardship cases, where application may be made directly at the wall where five crossing points for West Berliners were

Mr. Laird and his aides, it was apparent that the quarterly cost of the Vietnam war has increased by $1.5 hillion since North Vietnam began its offensive at the end of March. The United States, Mr. Laird disclosed, also plans a $400 million increase in military aid to South Vietnam to replace equipment lost during the offensive.

The administration has not made public the estimated cost of the Vietnam war made before the North Vietnamese Invasion, but according to Mr. Laird's aides it was less than the $7 billion projected for the current fiscal year that ends June 30. If the increased military activities result in a $5 billion increase, therefore, the result could be to about double the cost of the war.

The additional cost for the war will he added to the $83.4 billion in defense appropriations that the administration has requested for the coming fiscal year. .

Modernization

From the testimony of Mr. Laird and Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, it was apparent that the Defense Department and military will go along with the arms control agreements only if the administration proceeds with modernization of the offensive strategic forces.

That was made explicit at one point by Adm. Moorer, who said the joint chiefs support the agreements "provided we more ahead" with modernization of the offensive forces.

One of the agreements in the form of treaty would limit the two nations to two anti-ballistic missiles sites—one around their. national capital, the other protecting an intercontinental misslie base. The other interim year ilmitation on the number of fand-based and suhmarine-launched missiles that each side may deploy.

Mr. Laird argued that the United States must proceed with modernization of its offensive strategic forces to provide an incentive for the Soviet Union to negotiate in the next phase of the SALT negotiations as well as to provide a "hedge" if the negotiations fail, fiscal year, the administration has proposed a $1.2 billion increase for offensive strategic weapons. Of this total $542 million would go to accelerate development of a new missilelaunching submarine called Trident and $445 million to proceed with engineering of the B-1 supersonic bomber to replace the B-52.

Canada Extends Visa for Hughes

VANCOUVER, British Columbia, June 5 (AP).—Millionaire Howard Hughes has been granted a one-year extension of his Canadian visitor's permit, officials said yesterday.

John McKinstree of the Im-migration Department said that the extension, valid until June 2, 1973, was granted Friday.

There was speculation earlier, when it was rumored that Mr. Hughes would like to remain in Canada, that he would have to end his long seclusion and apply in person to the Immigration Department for the extension. However, Mr. McKinstree said that the Immigration Department had sent an official to Mr. Hughes. "It is normal to have applicants appear at the office," Mr. Mc-

Housewives Campaign, Violence Goes On

63,500 Catholics Sign Ulster Peace Plea

BELFAST, June 5 (UPI).-Roman Catitolic housewives in Belfast and Londonderry today presented Secretary of State William Whitelaw with prace petitions containing 63,500 signatures.

Among the 13,500 signatures on the Londonderry petitions were those of five leaders of the Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army, according to the housewives

Even as Mr. Whitelaw accepted the documents, first at his office in Belfast's Stormont Castle and later at Londonderry's Guildhall, violence continued in the province.

The army mounted a largescale search operation in Belfast's Roman Catholic New Lodge Road area and arrested what an army spokesman described as "three important members" of Provisionals.

Barricade Erected

Angry crowds gathered as the troops carried out their search, throwing stones, bottles and bright at the calling bricks at the soldlers and erecting a herricade. They also bijacked truck and car and set them

A number of shots were fired at the soldiers, but there were no casualties, the spokesman said. Several of the troops fired rubber bullets in an attempt to disperse the troublemakers

States Should Encourage Press, Schiller Says

MUNICH, June 5 (AP).—Karl Schiller, West German minister of economy and finance, said to-day that it was the role of governments to insure the public has access to a diversity of sources of news without infringing on editorial freedom. Mr. Schiller told the opening session of the International Press Institute's general assembly that the state must counter-with financial aid if necessary-growing economic pressures on small and medium sized newspapers are leading to increased press concentration

"The state should be concernabout the diversity of opinions, about the diversity of what is available and nothing more" the minister said. "As soon as the state concerns itself about the contents of available information, it leaves the path of the democratic process."

The End of the Case

were passionate cries from many quarters that she was certain to be condemned, that she could never receive a fair hearing in any American court, that this was merely political and racial persecution, cloaked in the forms of law. Now that a jury drawn from the almost wholly white and eminently bourgeois city of San Jose has, after a trial conducted with decorum and fairness, acquitted this black, avowedly and articulately Communist woman of all charges, one can hear voices saying that she never should have been tried at all. Her attorney, for example. One of her attorneys has said that, while the case was not a frame-up in the traditional sense, "If Angela Davia were not Angela Davis, she would never have been prosecuted."

Of course, since it was Angela Davis who was so openly committed to the cause of the Soledad Brothers, and Angela Davis who burchased the guns used in the killings in the Marin County Courthouse, this was quite true. It was those uncontested facts that brought her under suspicion—a suspicion reinforced by her long flight. And these suspicions had enough evidential basis to make her trial on charges of murder, kidnapping and conspiracy virtually inevitable. No matter what her name, or political convictions, there was established a case that could only be fully elucidated in court.

What many Europeans, living under a dif-Ferent system of law, could not appreciate

Before Angels Davis went on trial there was that Angela Davis was not presumed guilty when she came into court; she did not have to prove her innocence. She was declared not guilty, rather, because the prosecution failed to prove, to the satisfaction of the jury, the essential links between Miss Davis and the actual fatal disturbance in the Marin County Court.

There are, doubtless, many who would have liked to see Miss Davis punished for her color or her ideas, just as there are many who would like to have had her freed for the same reasons—both reacting without any real relevance to the crimes of which she was accused. But the trial was not conducted with any such bias, nor is it apparent in the results.

American penology has been subjected to many searching disquisitions within recent years. Crowded court calendars, poor facilities for detention, inequitable arrangements for bail and counsel, imperfection in the rules of evidence, the legitimacy of capital punishment, are all being argued and studiedand, however slowly, changed. The more basic question of the relationship between poverty and crime is also in the forefront of many minds. The case of Angela Davis by no means answers all, if it answers any, of these contested points. But it does show that the heart of the system is sound. that a fundamental fairness exists and that, if absolute justice is no more attainable in the United States than in any other society, the United States tries hard to achieve it.

Missile Freeze

Early approval of President Nixon's historic, if limited, agreements with the Soviet Union for freezing nuclear missile deployment is the most urgent foreign-policy business before the Congress. But care must be taken not to pay a price to opponents of arms control that will undermine prospects for future progress in this vital area.

The President has responded to concerns expressed by Sen. Henry M. Jackson and other congressional "hawks" with assurances that American strategic forces will, "without question," remain "sufficient" for the protection of this country's vital interests. Mr. Nixon's problem is that, to achieve agreement with Moscow, he has courageously accepted what appears to be a substantial Soviet edge in some weapons.

That edge includes 40 percent more intercontinental ballistic missiles (1,408 to 1,000) and missile-launching submarines (62 to 44), one-third more submarine-launched ballistic missiles (950 to 710) and a three-fold Soviet advantage in megatonnage of total missile payload. Much of this appears in writing in the five-year agreement freezing strategic offensive missiles.

But there is no mention of the far more significant 3-to-1 American advantage in warhead numbers deriving from multiple independently targeted re-entry vehicles known as MIRVs. But the Soviet Union can also develop the MIRV, though it has yet to test one and is believed to be at least four years behind the United States. With MIRV and its larger missile forces. Russia might ultimately surpass the United States in total

The President can point out, however, that without the missile agreements Russia's current construction rate would give it 80 to 90 missile-launching submarines by 1977. rather than the 62 it has now. The United States has no current building program in these weapons. Moreover, while placing cellings on Moscow's chosen offensive instruments-the giant SS-9 ICBMs and the Class Y submarines—the pact will not restrict the MIRV multiple warheads for both Minuteman land-based ICBMs and Poseidon submarine missiles, the chosen instruments of the joint chiefs of staff.

The American chiefs also know that their geographic and qualitative advantages more than make up for the Soviet Union's projected numerical lead in Polaris-type submarines. Russia's ICBM lead is also compensated by an American advantage in strategic bombers, which are not limited by the Moscow accords.

All this should constitute sufficient response to Sen. Jackson and his friends and should gain the endorsement of the joint chiefs. But Secretary Laird is insisting, in addition, that the United States press ahead with the large defense budget increase requested before the arms limitation pacts were concluded, including an accelerated buildup of every strategic weapon not covered in the agreements.

If this were needed to insure congressional approval of the Moscow agreementsthe overriding need at the moment—the cost might not be too high. But the real aim seems to be to create "bargaining chips for the next round of negotiations to limit strategic arms. And the first round of the socalled SALT talks suggests that the Soviet Union will insist on matching or exceeding the additional American buildup before further agreement can be reached.

Both sides already have more than 10 times the number of warheads they need to deter or destroy each other. Mutual restraint now could speed up a SALT-II agreement and. more important, assure much lower limits on offensive strategic forces than would be possible if both sides now press ahead to add to overkill as bargaining chips for the next negotiating round.

The argument for such restraint is as compelling as the case for prompt congressional sanction for the ground-breaking steps to curb the nuclear arms race represented by the Moscow accords.

THE NEW YORK TIMES.

International Opinion

Nuclear Arms Race

The full consequences of the agreements signed in Moscow-especially the five-year interim SALT treaty-will only become evident at a time when President Nixon will have already retired from the scene (even if he wins in November) and Henry Kissinger will again be lecturing at Havard. At the moment, however, any alternative seems unattractive. If it is true, as a UN study has stated, that there are 23 million men under arms and that for each person on earth there is now the nuclear equivalent of 15 tons of TNT at the ready, then any step in the direction of arms limitation would appear to be better than nothing. According to one of the now fashionable games theories, the nuclear parity now granted to the Russians could reduce tensions. But that applies only if both parties to the agreements stick to the same rules. Nothing better characterizes the situation than the fact that Nixon travelled to Peking and Moscow carrying in his luggage the means to trigger a war of nuclear destruction at any time.

-From Neue Zuercher Zeitung (Zurich). The European Summit

Mr. Pompidou has said that he would not have taken the responsibility for inviting nine heads of government to Paris if their meeting was going to result only in vague declarations of intent, agreements on minor matters or, worst of all, badly disguised agreements. The implication seemed to be that the differences of view among the 10 are not only wider than he expected, but so deep as to put the summit itself at risk. This is the more surprising given Mr. Pompidou's previous enthusiasm.

WASHINGTON, D.C.-Mr. Sherman sent to the Senate today a letter from the Austro-Hungarian minister protesting, on behalf of his government, against the proposed increase of discrimination duties on sugar from bountypaying countries. The letter stated that the adoption of these duties would deny Austria-Hungary the most favored nation treatment and inflict serious damage on her export trade. The communication was referred to the Finance Committee.

NEW YORK-It is announced that there is to be no discrimination as to sex in future elections to the Hall of Fame in New York. The decision made by the Senats of New York University, may be regarded as one more landmark in the long history of woman's emancipation. No provision was made for the placing of women's names in the Hall of Fame when it was established in 1900. But this is 1922, and today, times are different. Famous and outstanding women have their place there.

Vietnam and the Imperfect Circle

By Anthony Lewis

LONDON.—The success of the Moscow summit is a particular triumph for Henry Kissinger's world view. He has argued that great powers can balance their mutual interests on a planetary scale, transcending local or ideological differences. In Moscow, as in Peking, President Nixon boldly followed that approach.

The question that remains is how the global vision can solve the little local difficulty of Vietnam. Kissinger would doubtless accept that it is not begrudging the triumph of Moscow for those concerned about Vietnam to ask.

In the Kissinger view, American policy-presidential policyshould be a circle in which all elements fit together. Bangladesh, the Middle East, everything must be related to the effort to create a structure of great-power accommodation. In those terms Vietnam. is an annovance. It is "one small country," as Kissinger recently called North Vietnam in evident frustration, that will not fit the pattern. It is a bump on an otherwise perfect circle.

American policy is to squeeza that bump, to make it conform. The evident fear is that to compromise our political objectives in South Vietnam in any meaningful way would weaken our power and credibility everywhere would threaten the entire circle.

That is the theory underlying the tremendous increase in American firenewer applied to Vietnam in the last two months: The intensified bombing of the North, the new shelling from ships offshore, the approval of new strategic targets, the mining of harbors. And the prospert is for more escalation, more B-52s, more ships, a new air base in Thalland.

One who has just been in North Vietnam would never underestimate the destructive force of made life more difficult. It has also destroyed many civilian faculties schools and homes and hospitals and taken many lives.

The utilitarian question is whether the destruction will work politically: Will it make the North Vietnamese negotiate on American terms in Paris, as Kissinger has long hoped. When I tried to explore that question in Hanoi several persons referred to the testament of Ho Chi Minh, written a few months before his death in 1969. It includes a two-

Is the U.S. Still Inhabitable?

By David and Holly Franke

NEW YORK—Is the United States still inhabitable? We decided to find out, and the result was a memorable 20,000mile trip across America.

We found what we were looking for-communities where calm and your children are visiting friends down the street, mescorted, even after dark, doesn't mean that you are trying to get rid of them; where crime is something reported on the television screen, confirming each night your good sense in accepting (perhaps) a smaller paycheck in return for a more satisfying home and community life. But we also ran into disquieting notes throughout the country, even in those safe places. We returned simultaneously elated and optimistic, perturbed, weary, and anxious to start all over again. For almost four months we had traversed our nation not in disjointed segments -105 continuous days sampling nature's and man's great stereopticon. If we remember the Painted Desert, we also remember the very real threat posed by coalfired power plants that would discharge more filth into its crystalclear air than would be allowed in Los Angeles. If we remember a few communities of outstanding architectural merit, we also recall

Wa cama back too with some impressions and conclusions on matters that are perhaps more substantial. Who says small towns are dead? They're just thriving so much they are getting bigger. It is true that we are losing a great many of our hamlats of under 2,000 population, especially in the Midwest and the South. But at the same time the communities of 5,000, 10,000, 15,000 or 25,000 population reflect buoyancy and optimism. More and more of them are attracting small industries that are also seeking to escape the problems and prohibitive costs of the metropolitan

We observed how, in town after town, the most modern and architecturally striking building was the bank. And after that, the schools. (What emphasis we Americans place on educational facilities!) We were impressed in these towns and small cities by the seemingly constant improvements and expansions in hospital and medical facilities, in recreational facilities, in library facilities. And by the proliferation of community organizations, clubs, projects, charity drives and activities of all soris.

Wa also observed that despite the caricature of the businessman as reactionary, he is in fact usually the most progressive element in the community. In town after town it was the businessmen who got things moving, who complained about the backwardness of the rest of the community and how it resisted change.

The extent of the problem is much less in these small towns, of course, but drugs are available.

Hostility discouraging experience having to deal with the Iccal police and sheriffs' departments. More often than not we were greeted with suspicion or a thinly velled hint that we were a nuisance. One factor that seemed sometimes to make a difference in the attitude of the police was, not surprisingly, the chief. Find a chief who believes in education and you will find a force that has better-educated (and usually younger) men, that seems to remember it is there to serve the law-abiding public, and that has men who actually know how to crack a smile.

It was in Wyoming that we first encountered an attitude which prevailed throughout the West and, later, in the New Eng-

If in fact the present level of American air and naval activity does not make them come to terms, what follows? In Hanoi, many foreigners thought the logic of American policy was to go on up the path of escalation, hoping that each step would at last bring political results. Some thought the next logical step would be the destruction of Hanot. -

There is no real sign now of any internal check to such a policy. Protest in America is at a low level. People are weary, without hope. Congress is ineffectual. Few seem to care how many Vietnamese are killed in order to make the circle per-

Equally sharp was Polsenstein's staging for "Bluebeard." Offenbach's comic rewriting of the old fairy tale. As with "Hoffmann," every character in it was a charactor. Every member of the chorus was distinct from every other. Every Offenbachian musical climax was equalled by a risual comp do thethre that had the audience applanding—and despite the boos referred to above, the appiause was far more prominent. Hanns Nocket's deafening and robust Bluebeard and Anny Schlemm's lusty, magnificently vulger Boulotte were worth more than the defects, whatever they might be. The old rule of "Go with what you've got" applies here, and Felsenstein and company applied it splendidly.

LONDON, June 5 (IRT),—It is either brave or unthinking for Joan Littlewood to choose this moment to revive one of her most successful theater workshop productions, Brendan Behan's The Hestage," at the Theatre. Royal in London's East End. Fourteen years later, the current tragedies of Irish politics, where sudden death has become commonplace, cast a dark shadow over this knockshout bawdy play peopled by incompetent patriots and bungling IRA men.

The central situation retains its relevance, and not only to Ireland. The hostage is an 18-year-old British soldier who is to be shot unless a death sentence is lifted on a young member of the IRA, but this aspect is quickly passed over. The boy is held prisoner in a brothel owned by mad Englishman turned Irisb patriot and run by a veteran of Ircland's earlier troobles. It is full of eccentric lodgers and whores, all dedicated to enjoying

The IRA officer, played by James Booth with glum ferocity, is presented as an obsessive lifehating puritan. The action is given over to singing, a bit of dancing, and geoeral jollity. Miss Littlewood has reassembled most of her original cast, so that the

Many of the performances are irresistibly amusing. Clive Barker provides moments of pure joy as an apprehensive sentry. Patience Collier revels in her role as Miss Glichrist, "a sociable worker," and Brian Murphy scampers to good effect as a bowler-hatted pedant. Such an approach depends a great deal on audience response and there are times when the cast's involvement seems perfunctory.

In the program, Brendan Behan is quoted as saying: "I have a total irreverence for anything connected with society except that which makes the roads safer, the beer stronger, the food cheaper, and old men and old women warmer in the winter and happier in the summer." Miss Littlewood's production is an affirmation of that statement, warm-hearted, outgoing delight. Yet, at times, it seemed not so much irreverent as irrelevant.

For Shakespeare's "The Tempest" at the Open Air Theatre, Regent's Park, Kit Surrey has provided a setting of a precipi-tous cliff that looks a little as if it has strayed from the nearby zoo. You expect antelopes to jump from its crags or, consider-ing the play, at least a notice saying that "these animals are dangerous."

Director Richard Digby Day oncentrates on the play's visual qualities and, for some reason of his own, adds Prospero's brother Antonio to the immature beings left on the island at the end

union, full of high spirits. The of the play, But the production cast performs, in effect, a gloss lacks harmony and magic. It on the play, treating it as a base provides a splenetic Prospero (Michael Denison), a balletic Ariel (Wayne Sleep), a charmingly wide-eyed Miranda (Celia Bannerman), a Scottish Caliban (Gregory Floy) like a football fan on the rampage, and some saving broad comedy from Ian Talbot and James Bree as Trinculo and Stephano.

> Alan Weiss, who has written film scripts for Elvis Presley ("Blue Hawaii") and John Wayne ("The Sons of Katie Elder") is obviously trying to extend his range with his first stage play, "Nobody Loves Wednesday," at the Arts Theatre with its twin themes of homosexuality and race. He obviously intends to shock and offend but be astonishes only by his adherence to cliché and his resolutely oldfashioned manner, > Carolyn, a liberal-minded girl anxious to lose her virginity, arrives to stay at her brother's New York apartment only to discover that he is a homosexual (gasp) living with a black man (gasp, gasp). I need only add that the girl and the black leave together at the end of the first act and that Mother arrives in the second and you will be able to reconstruct the action.

Entertainment in New York.

This is how critics rate new films and stage productions in New York:

Plays "Conditions of Agreement," by

John Whiting, first produced in 1965 after the author's death, is "faulty, obviously an early effort," Mel Gussow reports in The New York Times. William Glover, Associated Press drama critic, bas kinder words for this first effort by Whiting, whose best known drama is "The Devils": He called it "stimulating" and says that there is "ample provocativa substance to justify this offbeat effort by Roundabout, a company that devotes most of its repertory season to classic revivals." The play concerns a widow living in a small English village and the various men in her life. "The widow has no character, only a wistful facade." Gussow says. "She watches passively as the men act upon one another . . . Dramatically the play is about mutual persecution, both with memory and with public harassment." The Times critic thinks that Fred Stuthman is miscast in the pivotal role of Bembo and that Tom V.V. Tammi overacts as the bitter son. the most unformed role, that of the mother, Ruth Warwick is eimply a frowning puzzled on-looker." The play was directed by Gene Feist.

"Possession of Joel Delaney," directed by Waris Hussein, starring Shirley MacLaine as a reeently divorced, fashionable New York matron who, in a motherly sense, would like to possess her kid brother Joel (Perry King). "She finds to her consternation that be has already been possessed by somebody else," Roger Greenspun of The Times reports. "It begins with Joel's lapses of memory, his sudden babbling in Spanish (there is a Spanish-Sorting Joel out involves much mystery (and eventual horror) and an excursion for his sister into Spanish Harlem where she participates in an exorcism ceremony that doesn't work but that does contribute a nearly bearable sequence to the movie. Everywhere else it is full of hopeless performance, aggressively witless dialogue and the kind of fussy camera direction that keeps framing its subjects in fortuitous mirrors, or dissolving them behind decorative scrim and scrollwork."

FINANCIAL NEWS AND NOTES

German Tire Merger Set Back

Plans to merge two West German tire companies, Continental Gummi-Werke and Phoenix Gummiwerke, have been indefinitely set back with the announcement over the weekend that the companies will not submit any merger proposal at their respective uncoming annual meetings. Insiders claim that apparently in-surmountable problems in connection with as-sessing both firms plus possible labor trouble inconnection with likely layoffs after a merger-have blocked the plan. Reporting a 47 percent decline in 1971 net profit to 21 million deutsche marks ($6.5 million) on an almost unchanged sales volume of 1.3 billion DM, Continental has proposed a 50 percent cut in its annual dividend to 3 DM per share. The company said the earnings downtrend continued in the first 1972 quarter. Phoenix reports a 38 percent drop in 1971 profit to 8 million DM on virtually unchanged sales of $28 million DM. It is proposing an unchanged dividend of $ DM a share.

U.S. Drops North Atlantic Run

A century and a half of U.S. flag passenger ship operations in the North Atlantic have vir-tually come to an end, the victim of competition from jet sireraft and foreign-flag cruise vessels. President Nixon signed into law last Wednesday a measure authorizing the sale abroad of the bulk of U.S. passenger liner tonnage. The law covers the laid-up liners Brasil, Argentine, Constitution, Santa Paula and Santa Rosa. Not covered by the legislation are the United States purchased by the federal government for $13 million because of her potential value as a troopship-and the Independence-which appears to be the only liner with prospects of future operation as an American passenger ship. Moore-McCormack Lines, owners of the Brasil and Argentina, is the only one of the three companies involved with solid prospects of selling its ships. It has an agreement with Holland-America Line for the sale of the two liners for $20.5 million,

Argentina Plans New Oil Policy

The Argentine government has confirmed reports that it plans to grant the state-owned Petroleum company Yacimientos Petroliferos Piscales all rights to explore for and exploit Argentina's oil deposits. The proposed law would "cancel the system of permits for exploration and the concession of exploitation to private companies." He did not say what action the government planned against companies now operating in Argentina. The major private firms are units of Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, Royal-Dutch Shell group and Argentine-owned Astra. However, the government bill will not be approved in the near future. The complexity and importance of the measure makes it necessary that the hill is not approved with undue haste, a government official said.

Economic Upturn in U.K. Triggers Fears

LONDON, June 5 (AP-DJ).— Britain is beaded into an economupturn-and everybody is worried stiff.

The unemployment rate has fallen, there are signs that industry is increasing capital spend-ing, and many economists predict

5 percent this year—a real boost from last year's discouraging 1 But this is spurring Britain's persistent and worrisome inflation. At the end of the first quarter, average earnings were running 10.4 percent above the year-earlier level. And in mid-April, the government's retail price index was 8.3 percent higher than a year carlier. The result: Many believe that

Prime Minister Edward Heath may feel forced to initiate strong wage and price controls. Some experts also believe Britain may again devalue the pound. This is far from certain. But if it occurs, it may happen just before Britain joins the Common Market on Jan. 1. This situation strongly reflects effects of the pump-priming—but inflationary—national budget an-nounced last March. Before the budget, most economists' figured the economy would grow about 3 percent this year. In some respects, the government'e program is clearly working. Unemployment in England, Scotland and Wales declined in mid-May to a seasonally adjusted 3.8 percent of the work force from 42 percent a mouth earlier. Measures to ease restrictions on installment buying have clearly spurred such purchases. In the ment debt increased a seasonally adjusted £301 million—three times the increase in the full year through May, 1971.

But the increased heat in the economy comes at a time when an alarming inflation has proved hard to contain, especially without tough measures. For inetance, the government has attempted "informally" to hold wage increases to about 8 percent in the publicly-owned sector. This effort has falled dismally. Miners have received raises averaging 20 percent and rail workers have rejected an offer of a 12.5 percent raise and are holding out

On the price front, business also wants more. Lest summer the Confederation of British Industry (CBI) received promises from 200 of its key members to increase prices no more than 5 percent in the year ending next July 31. For a while, the arrangement worked well. Now it does not. Three of the country's biggest automakers have boosted their prices above the 5 percent mark In all cases, the CBI said it had little choice but to accept the Other big companies, caught in a cost squeeze, are not expected to hold down their prices much longer. And when the agreements expire July 31, prices may soar, some sources believe eliminate distortions caused by strikes, Britain's money supply in the last six months has grown at an annual rate of 20 percent the highest rate in British history. Many economists think that this unprecedented growth will be a major factor in generating new

All this inflationary pressure is hurting trade. UK export prices in 1971 rose twice as fast as those of its competitors. And as the ecocomy picks up, demand for imports is rising.

In April for the third month in a row, Britain imported more than it exported. The current balance of payments account (which excludes capital movements) was only in approximate balance in the three months ended April 30, a considerable deterioration from the current-account surplus of more than £885 million for all 1971. Some economists think the balance of payments is heading into deficit for

Tight Rules Sought on Tax Shelters

NASD Proposal Sets Criteria of Suitability

By Eileen Shanahan

WASHINGTON, June 5 (NYT). -The National Association of Securities Dealers (NASD) has proposed a drastic new rule simed at making sure that only investors of means—and, presumably, of sophistication—are permitted to buy tax-sheltered equities. The most popular taxsheltered equities are oil and gasdrilling programs and real estate

The proposed rule goes beyond any existing requirement of the NASD, the Securities & Exchange Commission or any stock ex-change in establishing vendors of suitability of a particular investment for a particular purchaser.
For these tax-sheltered securities, which are also generally considered to be very high risk securities, the proposed rule sets forth specific financial criteris of suitability. The purchaser must reasonably be expected to be in a 50 percent tax bracket ($44,000 of taxable income for a married person', bave a net worth of at least $50,000 and have tax-sheltered investments that are not disproportionate to his net worth.

A minimum purchase of $5,000 would be required of any buyer and while payment in install-ments would be permitted, it would be discouraged by the ban on interest charges that is also contained in the rule.

The proposed rule also imposes some strict requirements on the brokers who sell tax-sheltered equities, which are obviously aimed at keeping fly-by-nights out of this business

The broker who was sponsoring tax-sheltered investment would be required to have a net worth equal to at least 10 per-cent of the total value of all such tax-sheltered programe sponsored by it during the year, or a net worth of $100,000, whichever was greater. The sale of high-risk tax-sheltered equities to the public has been a matter of expressed concern for several years by the SEC and congressional commit-tees. Whether this rule, or an amended version, would be the only step taken to protect the public from undne risk in such investments was not immediately

Levitz Leads Retreat Of Prices on Big Board

Britain Plans Parley With IPC Owners

LONDON, June 5 (Reuters).-Britain plans to consult the United States, France and the Netherlands Thursday on problems arising from the nationalization of the Iraq Petroleum Company's assets in Iraq and Syria. Foreign Secretary Sir Alec Douglas-Home told Parliament today that he had some preliminary talks with French and U.S. representatives while they were in West Berlin Saturday for the signature of the four-power agreement on Berlin.

Sir Alec said the Pritish government hoped that the Lagi and Syrian governments would make provision for prompt, adequate and effective compensation to IPC, which has its headquarters here and in which Britain, France, the Netherlands and the United States have shares.

France Eyes Talks

PARIS, June 5 (AP-DJ) .- The French government is leaning toward acceptance of Iraq's offer to negotiate over compensation for IPC with a view to preserving French interests, qualified observers said today.

A decision, however, is not likely to be taken before the visit to Paris of Iraqi Vice-President Sedam Hussein, scheduled for June 14

Iraq Studying Compensation BAGHDAD, Iraq, June 5 (Reuters).—Two official committees today began a study of the question of compensation for IPC, the official Iraq news agency said. to Oil Minister Saadoun Hammadi by June 12 at the latest, ping loss, plummeting 12 1/4 to 47 1/4 after finally opening at 49. This marked the first time that Levitz had traded since May 24. The Securities & Exchange Commission has set a June 12 hearing to determine whether to issue a stop order against a pending registration statement for 600,000 shares of Levitz common.

Among losers on the active roster were UAL, down 2 1/2 to 45 3/4, and Delta Air Lines, off 2 5/8 to 53. In less active trading, Northwest fell 2 to 48 1/4 and TWA slipped 1 3/8 to 54 5/8.

Industry sources said that air-line issues evidently reacted to reports that traffic over the Memorial Day weekend was not as heavy as had been expected. Curtiss-Wright, down 2 3.8 to 39 3.4 as the third most active issue, ran into its share of profit taking. It sold at a record price of 42 3.4 on Friday, reflecting conjecture over inture use of the Wankel engine to which the company holds North American

Other declines included Carter-Wallace, down 1 5/8 to 21 5,8 on lower quality profits, and Telex, off 3.4 to 10 1.8. Telex reported a sharp earnings decline for fiscal

Volume on the Big Board fell to 13.45 million shares, marking the lowest turnover in three

Prices on the American Stock Exchange closed lower. American Israell Paper Mills, which an-nounced increased profit for the year ended March 31, was the most active issue and jumped 5 1/8 to 14 3/4.

Wilson & Co, closed with an advance of 3/4 at 11 1/2 after announcing that LTV, which owns 84 percent of Wilson, is negotiating to acquire the remaining publicly held shares. Tentative terms provide for LTV to pay about $12 for each Wilson share.

The corporate bond market closed very weak in quiet trading as dealers noted losses of 1'4 to 3/4 of a point in spots. They said an absence of investor interest at the market's current level pushed prices lower. Government issues were off between 1/16 and 1/4 of a point. .The over-the-counter market followed the general pattern, with the NASDAQ index off 1.04 to 142,31.

The Trib has its ow "first nighters" all 076 Europe... and reports regularly on the New Y stage as well.

Because, as a leading international bank in Western Europe, we're thoroughly, familiar with the complexities of doing business there. For example, we camhelp'you'decide which currency to use for your financing? We can tell you what areas of Europe offer subsidized financing. And tax benefits. You should know what effect the narrowing of bans on trading limits between Common Market currencies will have on your present and future financial plans. And how to use government sponsored export credit facilities in the U.S. and other countries.

Not only do we have the expertise to help you reach decisions about Western Europewe have the resources to help you implement them.

Manufacturers Hanover can arrange short, medium, or long term financing in any convertible currency, for virtually any amount and any purpose. And by pulling together funds from a number of sources we can create special project financing packages far in excess of any one bank's capability.

And through our network of branches, representative offices, correspondents, merchant bank, and other affiliates, MHT has invaluable links with money managers in every Western European country.

With $14 billion of assets, Manufacturers Hanover is able to offer the full scope of services necessary to do business in Western Europe. Yet. for all our size, we can respond to your needs instantaneously. Because at MHT, decisions are made by individuals, not committees.

Isn't this the kind of bank you'd like to have behind. you in Western Europe?

International investment counselling

Managing international investments requires the establishment of Policy; the formulation of Strategy; and the execution of Tactics.

These elements are indivisible! If you are an investor with too little time to review cootinuously and adjust each to your needs, you might like to consider professional help.

At Lionel D. Edie International, we help you to arrive at a Policy considering your goals; we continuously appraise the economic ontlook of major international market areas to advise on Strategy; and we provide experienced Counsellors with ample time to adjust Tactics to changing markets and changing developments.

If you would like more information about Edic's services contact Edouard Iselin, our Executive Vice President in Geneva. He will be glad to discuss Policy, Strategy and Tactics and explain our fee structure.

The Ordinary General Meeting of Shareholders, held on May 30, 1971, under the chairmanship of Mr. Michel CAPLAIN, approved the accounts for the fiscal year of 1971, showing a net profit of Fr. 78,503,850 compared with Fr. 57,554,020 for the preceding year. A decision was taken is effect payment—as of June 12—of a dividend of Fr. 12.50, which qualifies for a fiscal credit of Fr. 8,25 (coupen No. 28).

During the discussion, which followed the reading of the report, President CAPLAIN. In repty to several quastions raised by the company's shareholders in connection with the motier of the "Groupe des Assurances de Paris," made the following statement:

"(1) We inharit a situation resulting from past agreements between It Abellie. It Union Floancière et Minière gave us an interest of approximately 19%. We are therefore not indifferent to either the outcome of the "Groupe des Assurances de Paris," in which the marger of Seaz-Union Floancière et Minière gave us an interest of approximately 19%. We are therefore not indifferent to either the outcome of the "Groupe des Assurances de Paris" or to that of the Banqua d'Indochino, in which we have a non-negligible participation, and to which we are linked by friendship and diverse business interests. The continuation of these close relations is of extreme happortance to our Group.

"(2) For some time, La Paternelle has been tocusing us of imperialism and insimuring that a kind of collusion between banks exists for the purpose of telding over the control of an insurance group. Lately, this tactic at La Paternelle has publicly laken a particularly disagreeable turn. Rather than being a collusion between banks, it is, in fact, a question at difference at the one hand between the L'Abellie Holding Group mainly orientated towards insurance and ourselves as a diversified Holding Company with hereis and many other activides, and on the other hand, La Paternelle S.A. Holding which also owns insurance companies and a bank. Thus, by un means is there, as instinuated, handers on one s COMPAGNIE FINANCIERE DE SUEZ

Holding which also owns insurance companies and a bank. Thus, by an means is there, as instanced, bankers on one side and insurers on the other.

"With regard to the accusation of imperialism, if is pure conjecture, and we could have, quite rightly, attributed the same to La Faternello, cartain of whose representations within the "Groupe das Assurances do Paris" have shown by their behaviour, then by their dealings, that they did not have any understanding about the management of a large onterprise belonging to several distinct groups. This is the underlying reason for the conflict which confronts us and in spite of which, up to the lest minute, we have tried, by all possible means, to maintain within the "Groupe des Assurances de Paris" on equilibrium in harmony with the spirit of the original protocol.

"[3] Hawver serious the conflict may be, I think there is a hil too much tells about a fight and a bottle. This worlike veccubulary seems to me very excessive at least as far as our company is concerned, and which, on the confront, until recently, retrained from any action whatsoesar.

"When the conflict between the General Manager of the "Groupe des Assurances de Paris" and the majority of the Board lad the latter to discussociate itself from him, this General Manager, President of certain insurance subsidiaries, initiated—against the opinion expressed by the Board majority of the "Groupe des Assurances de Paris," that is to say aquinst the opinion of the majority of its shareholders—a mussia a transfer of shares, a management initiative that was certainly questionable. As a result, Le Paternelle secured the practical coatrol of the Banque de l'Indochine without the agreement of the Banke President. It's only in response to these actions and to defend its interests and those of its friends that the Compagnie Financière de Suer had one of its subsidiaries purchase "This gives the Abellie and Sues Groups a strong majority within the "Groupe des Assurances de Paris."

"Such is the surrest situation which must mi

1) As soon as possible. You will receive information on the solution that will be adopted.

2) In the solution of this problem we have only in view the defense of your interests and the prolection at the positions and inture of our Company. The Extraordinary General Meeting, which was hold following the Ordinary Meeting, approved the absorption of L'Union Financière et Minière shares, the remittance of 7 Suez shares for 5 Union Financière et Minière shares. The capital slock has thus been increased from Fr. 544,310,300 to Fr. 888,898,700.

A leading U.S. business publication, surveyed 2,300 top business executives. They named Tennecoone of "The Ten Best-Managed Companies."

Certainly, that's the kind of company Tenneco likes to keep. And, we're in that company because of "careful diversification."

in just 28 years of business, we've grown from the builder and operator of America's largest natural gas pipeline to a corporation with a sound mixture of products that touch, the lives of hundreds of millions.

We charted our growth with logic. From the beginning we made, the decision to diversify in arees that were compatible with our total. organization.

Today this pattern is evident throughout the fabric of Tenneco. From agriculture to land development, from chemicals to packaging, from tractors to automotive equipment, from gas transmission to oil operations, from construction machinery to shipbuilding. In short, Tenneco has made diversification work. Our revenues have increased every single year. Now at $2,800 million-and building.

With the East-West hands in view it is clear that a slam is a poor proposition, since there is a sure heart loser and possible losers in spades and diamonds. However South did not know that his opponents were overbid and finally emerged from his bush with a bid of seven clubs. This was not appreciated by North, who had planned to double six spades and now found himself the dummy in seven clubs

The bidding was unusual in two respects. South was a believer in the dubious theory that there is value in lying in wait with a freakish hand and emerging from the bushes when the opponents have reached their limit. #### THE DEVASTATING BOYS AND OTHER ST

By Elizabeth Taylor. Viking. 179 pp. $5.95.

Reviewed by Anatole Broyard

THE short story today seems staid, middle-aged Engl to be caught up in a competitating two little West Ir tion of subtlety. Who can weave into their country hor a web of the thinnest materials? Who is most cunning in avoiding boys are busy the withe vulgarity of action? Even the characters, the uneliminable element in stories, are muted down to the point where they are just barely there. In fact, one might call such stories existential or other West Indian, a you ontological for it is the characters' "being there"—the "dasein". of Heidegger—that is their sole drams. For the existentialist, "being there" is the essence of man's condition, and there are authors who are content to illustrate this.

Some of them have worked out very ingenious way of doing it. Their technique is so smooth, so unobtrusive that their characters are evoked before your eyes with a hardly perceptible stir. They appear on such crafty cat feet that they are there before you have had a chance to develop any feelings or expectations about them. It's a conjuring trick: The author produces the character so mysteriously that he never "arrives." And since you haven't seen him coming, you don't expect him to go anywhere.

That, in fact, may be the object of this genre: simply to confront you with someone. Just as some graphic artists will seize upon a found object and by putting it up on the wall of a gallery transform it into an art object, so these authors make fiction out of "found" people. One looks at them and thinks: "a man," woman," "a child," as if they were seething sculptures. Since there is no implication that they are about to do anything, you natu-rally focus exclusively on them on the themness of them, so tospeak.

We are so alert to ourselves as unique animals born into an unprecedented tangle of psychophysical predicaments that-if we want to create a "story"-it is almost enough merely to look at ourselves in a mirror. When we glance back through our recent history, we are not encouraged to believe in the value of meliorative action, so that, if we are not to surrender to the notion of futility, our best strategy is to fall back on our "thereness." And it's quite tempting in its own right, for human existence today is an equilibrium more complex-more loaded with texture, frozen movement, overlapping planes, point and counterpoint, promise, threat, tension, tragedy and comedy— than most works of art. Our drama as a species threatens to render any further drams redundant.

In "The Devastating Boys," more than half of Elizabeth Ta lor's stories are about "being there." The title piece shows a Times book reviewer.

Sanders Beats Trevino By One With 30-Footer

CHARLOTTE, N.C., June 5 (NYT).—Doug Sanders, with the short backswing, the wide stance and a penchant for socializing. came back to the winning golf column yesterday with a birdie putt to clinch the Kemper Open tourney. The 30-footer from off the green at the 18th hole of the Quall Hollow Country Club gave the 38-year-old professional a 68 for a 275 total and $35,000 of the $175,000 purse.

A few minutes after Sanders closed his round in spectacular fashion. Lee Trevino hammered a second shot to within five feet of the home green flagstick, needing a birdle to tie. But Trevino failed to hole out for the deadlock and his par four gave him his fourth atraight three-under-par 69 for 276 and second place. Labron Harris jr., son of the Oklahoma State golf coach, was third with a 68 for 277.

LOS ANGELES, June 5 (NYT). -Using a shot two ounces too heavy, George Woods yesterday became the third man in track and field history to break the 70-foot barrier.

Woods, 28, and the silver medalist in the 1968 Olympics, unloaded an opening effort of 70 feet 1 3.4 inches during the Compton invitation track meet at The Coliseum. He followed with puts of 69-4 1/4 and 69-2 1/2. "I really didn't feel anything on that first one," said the per-sonable 6-foot-1-inch 305-pound Woods, who is an administrative official at Southern Illinois. "I feel like there's more there if I can only connect." The only other athletes to schieve 70 feet in the event are Randy Mateun, the Olympic champion and world record-holder (71-5 1/2), and Al Fuerbach, who has done 70-3 1/2. Woods's performance was all the more remarkable because his shot was weighed at 16 pounds 2 ounces. Since the metal ball was too heavy and not too light, the meet record will stand. Matching Woods with outstanding performances wera Cethy Hemmond in the 400-meter run and Mark Winzenried in the 800 meters. Miss Hammond, 20, from Secramento, Calif., held off the Olympic 800-meter champion, Made-line Manning Jackson of Colum-bus, Ohio, in their first meeting of the year. Both were clocked in 521 seconds, one-tenth of a second above Miss Hammond's American record.

Winzenried, in perhaps his most significant half-mile of this Olympic season, led a strong field, including Juris Luzins, from start to finish in elecking 1 minute 46.6

2 Ford Mirages Are Pulled Öut Of Le Mans Test

LE MANS, France, June 5 (AP).-The two British-built Gulf Ford Mirage prototypes were scratched today from the 24 Hours of Le Mans, dealing a new blow to the prestige of the classic event.

Last week, Ferrari, which has already clinched the world manufacturers title, withdrew its four 3125 models from the race. Ferrari said they were designed for the sborter championship events and not for this 24-hour race, which will start Saturday.

Britain's John Wyer, who has managed winning Ford and Porsche entries here three times, informed the organizers today his Mirages were not sufficiently developed for

LONDON, June 5 (THT).—That law was invented well over s sublime redundancy, the Anglohundred years ago at Eton Col-Italian soccer tournament, is lege, where they called it, most appositely, "sneaking." There is always need for it in some form presently being played again for the third and, one hopes, the last time. The British players inor other, and the present form volved must, by and large, be seems the least of the alternativa exhausted and dejected, espeevils. Besides, as Ajax so heartenclally those of Stoke City, who ingly proved in its victory over played over sixty competitive Inter in the European Cup Final, the new, "total football," in matches, won the League Cup Pinal, and got to the (replayed) semifinal of the FA Cup. Roma's players are far from pleased, since in their case the sprat to enburg, technically light years behind Beckenbauer, but always ready to bring the ball upfield and to join in attacks. In Rotterdam, we saw that the Italian form of catenaccio is as dead as the dodo, something that everybody but the Italians seem to know. Or perhaps the truth is that they do know it, but haven't the courage to change. Juventus, the new champion, is a catenaccio team with a rigorously fixed sweeper in Salvadore. It relied heavily on the young Roberto Bettega to score goals for it and was not remotely the same team when he withdrew with a lung complaint. Just as Inter, in Rotterdam, threw Boninsegna up the field alone and boped for the best, just as Cagliari relied on Rivaso beavily. so Juventus looked to Bettega for goals. Not even the world's most expensive footballer, their centersive than ever. With the spirit forward, the Siellian Pietro Anasof the game, the fear and the tasi-666-million lire ($980,000) could get many of them when Bettega went.

It is simply, as Ajax and West Germany have gloriously shown us, not enough. After the Germans' brilliant 4-1 victory over Russia in Munich, opening the new stadium, after Ajax's second consecutive European success, surely even the Italians must heed the lesson.

Because the President had announced agreement on the freeze of nuclear weapons with the Russians, I expected Hannibal to be depressed. Instead, I found him euphoric. "Hannibal," I said, "how can you be amiling when President Nixon and the Russians are talking about disarmament? Surely this is a blow to the Military Industrial Complex and all it stands for."

"Wrong," Hannibal said, handing me a cigar. "This is the best thing that could happen to us." "I don't understand." I said, as he lit my clear with a Minuteman missile cigarette lighter.

"Russia and the United States have agreed to limit anti-ballistic missiles. They have also agreed to freeze land-based and submarine-based intercontinental missiles at the level now in operation. If it works, they may come to new agreements to limit arms production on other weapons now being made. This means we will have to work twice as hard to develop new weapons that aren't covered by the arms agreements." "You mean we're not going to save any money by the signing of the arms treaty?"

"Au contraire." Hannibal said. We will have to spend more money now for defense than ever before."

"Forget the peace dividend," Hannibal said. "In order for "In order for the Joint Chiefs of Staff to assure us that we have edequate protection in spite of the arms accord, we're going to have to spend at least another $20 billion in new weaponry-stuff that was too good to be true."

"You must remember," Hannibal said, "the Military Industrial Complex makes very little money once they are in full production on a weapon. By then, everyone knows exactly what it is going to cost, and we can't monkey around with the figures.

"But when we're asked to develop s new weapon, no one can put a price tag on it, and the longer it doesn't work the more money we can ask for to devel-

"Give me a contract for a weapon no one understands, and Ili give you twice the profits that I would on a weapon that has proven itself in the field."

"Gosh darn, Hannibal," I said. "I thought one of the reasons the President went to Moscow was to cut down on the spiraling infla-tion and wasteful money both countries were spending on weap-

"Maybe he did," Hannibal said. "But the fact is that at this very moment members of the Soviet military industrial complex are Bt their drafting boards working on new weapons which are not part of the accords. We can't let the Russians get ahead of us on these weapons, or we will lose the military edge to the other super power."

"But you don't even know what those weapons are," I protested. "All the more reason to spend money developing our weapons. I would say that the President's nuclear arms accord is actually a breakthrough for us. "Now we can come up with any wild idea, and Congress will have to buy it. We can say that if we don't have this weapon, the Russians may have one that is much eforc." more devastating. The Soviet

The Rodeo Cowboys

By Anthony Ripley

DUEBLO WEST, Colo. (NYT).-For all the maleness, the sense of physical power, the recklessness of climbing aboard an explosive animal and riding him, the shrugging off of injuries, a rodeo cowboy's world seems a fragile one. Here, in this heavily promoted new town in the desert-like high plains eight miles west of Pueblo, a score of oldtimers got together for the Casey Tibbs rodeo and cowboy

The shy and quiet men with the championship belt buckles grinned broadly at one another, punched a friend in the arm to say hello, clapped an arm around a shoulder and spoke of the old days. There was an air of innocence to

In a nation caught up in presidential ambition, in war, in treaties with the Russians, a nation distracted by inflation, busing and drugs, the rodeo riders live from one arena to the next, from one plunging animal to the next, like men on an island remote from the continent. The young riders today are on that island and for the old cowboys, the trip to Puehlo West brought it all back again. Eight seconds on a bull or bucking horse, a few more seconds roping a calf or wrestling a steer to the ground is the big moment in the rodeo world, and some of the old-timers gave it a try once again.

Talk of Old Days

Lifterward they sat in the crowded trailer near the arena and talked of the old days over whiskey, beer, soft drinks, chicken and beans. There were stories told over and over again of B funny incident, a remembered card game or of a time in New York City, Calgary or Cheyenne. Some of those who rode were Harley May, a thin, tall, handsome man who wrestled steers and now is in the real estate business in California; Deb Copenhaver, B short, widefaced saddle bronc rider who is in the restaurant business in the State of Washington: Harry Thomkins, a bull rider who looks like a businessman but has a ranch in Texas; Freckles Brown, who began riding bulls in 1937 and still hasn't quit despite B broken neck in 1962, and Casey Tibbs, who won his first national championship at 19 and has since gone to Hollywood and the movies. "Some of these old boys haven't seen each other in 30 years," said Mr. Tibbs, who organized the reunion. He told of two old-timers who once drank hard end kept everyone up late in the old days. Both men, he said, haven't had a drink "in probably 20 years and every drunk in the whole ootfit ended up in their room-just the opposite of the old days."

The modern rodeo riders, he said, fly from event to event around the country, seldom waiting behind for parties or early-morning card games as the old-timers used to do. "In a sense, they're taking a lot of the fun-the glamour

Casey Tibbs, organizer of the redeo and reunion.

-I don't know what you call it-out of the thing," he observed.

The old-timers, he said, were not all in the best condition and so did not all ride their specialties: "The undertaker would be busy for six weeks if they all got on," Air. Thibs added.

The rodeo was a promotion for Pueblo West, which the McCulloch Oil Corp. of Los Angeles hopes will some day be a town with 60,000 people, like its Lake Havasu City development in Arizona, where the London bridge has now here intelled. been installed.

The corporation paid for the cowboys air fare, room and board and gave them commemorative plaques to mark

Deb Copenhaver rode a bucking saddle horse till the eight-second buzzer sounded and then dropped to the ground. Blood trickled from one of his fingers. He looked at it briefly and went on walking.

Fastest Gun

Later, young Mark Reed ir., who calls himself the fastest gun in the world, drew and fired blanks at charging horsemen who fell from their horses like stunimen. Mr. Copenhaver was among the falling men. When he got up, he had cut his cheek. The blood ran red down his face and he tried to wipe it off, amid the kidding of other men as he walked through the dusty arena.

The old cowboys talked over how young Mark Reed had won $100 in a poker game and no one wanted him to leave the table so they would win back their losses. "You may be the fastest gun in the West, but you're going to be the slowest leaver in the South," someone told him, and they all laughed, again and again.

If the Wankie blast should seriously affect production the results would be quickly feit in Zambia, whose copper refineries -the backbone of the national economy-depend on the highgrade Wankie coal for fuel.

Zambia has been developing its own coal mines in an attempt to free itself from dependence on coal from Rhodesia, with whose white-run government it is politically at loggerheads:

Party for Dog Kept Alive By Pacemaker

PHILADELPHIA, June 7 (Reuters).-A 14-year-old dog that has lived the last five years with a Pacemaker device regulating his heartbeat was treated to a party at the University of Pennsylvania's School of Veterinary Medicine.

The dog, Count, was the first animal to receive a Pacemaker for a heart condition. His owners, Mr. and Mrs. Karl Ross, of Hillside, N.J., took him to the veterinary school yesterday for his checkup. The university turned the occasion into a party.

Guests ate sandwiches and drank beer, Count nibbled on cat food. "He likes it," Mrs. Ross said with a laugh.

Rumors of Soviet-U.S. Deal Send Gold Up to Record Highs

LONDON, June 7 (AP).—Speculative buying sparked by a spate of rumors of a secret gold price deal between the United States and Russia boosted the price of the metal to new peaks on Europe's bullion markets today and brought a weakening of the dollar on exchange markets. In Washington, a Treasury Department spokesman said that rumors of a secret deal to raise substantially the price of gold are "without foundation." The department also denied rumors that Treasury Under Secretary Paul A. Volcker is about to resign.

McGovern Wins Calif., Three Other Primaries

Delegate Strength Over 900

Sen. George McGovern captured California's 271 convention votes in a four-primary sweep vesterday that took him a long wey toward winning the Democratic presidential nomination.

Although the Callfornie race turned out to be closer than ex-pected, the South Dakota senator won a clear victory over Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey in their winner-take-all battle for the delegation to the Democratic National Convention, With 99 percent of the vote counted, Sen. McGovern had 45 percent to 40 for Sen. Humphrey. Hailing the victory as "comfortable and decisive," Sen. Mc-Govern said today that if he were elected President he would go to Hanol, Paris or "anywhere in the world" to reach agreement to end the war in North Vletnam and obtain the release of U.S.

Along with victorles in New Jersey, New Mexico and his own South Dakota, the California triumph vaulted Sen. McGovern's delegate total over 900 in his drive to reach the 1,509 needed for the nomination. These were the results in the other three

• In New Jersey, with more than 80 percent of the districts reporting. Sen. McGovern's slate took at least 70 delegation posts to seven for Scn. Humphrey, with 32 uncommitted or undecided.

• In New Mexico, with 98 percent reporting, Sen. McGovern had a narrow popular-vote vic-tory and 10 of the 18 delegates. Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama won the eight others.

In South Dakota, Sen. Mc-Govern won his home state's 17 delegates unopposed.

President Nixon easily won tha Republican primaries in all four states, although Galifornia's Rep. Paul N. McCloskey gained one delegate in New Mexico. Mr. Nixon scored a 9-to-1 victory over Rep. John M. Ashbrook of Ohio opposition in New Jersey, and was not opposed in South Dakota.

Sen. Humphrey appeared to have done well enough there to stay in the race and encourage those Democratic party leaders and labor chieftains who have been cool to the McGovern candidacy. Even before it became clear that Sen. Humphrey's margin in populous Los Angeles County would be insufficient to overcome the hefty McGovern majorities in the northern part of the state and in San Diego, Sen. McGovern was claiming victory and saying it means he'll win the Democratic

Gov. Wallace, a write-in entry, ran third with 5 percent, but his trus total was unlikely to be known for several days. Six other candidates split the remaining ballots. The vote, 99 percent 1,527,485, Sen. Humphrey 1,352,259, and Gov. Wollace 161,220. Despite the uncertainty in Gov.

Wallace's totals, it appeared that both Sen. Humphrey and Sen. McGovern had passed the Alabama governor in total popular votes. In 18 primaries with some kind of presidential preference voting, the nnofficial but virtually complete figures showed CALIFORNIA-Sen. McGovern won, gaining the state's 271 national-convention delegates. With 99 percent of the precincts counted, he had 45 percent of the total, to 40 percent for Sen. Humphrey and 5 percent for Gov. Wallace. President Nixon scored a 9-to-1 victory over Ohio Rep. John M. Ashbrook.

NEW JERSEY-The McGovern slate captured at least 70 delegates and Sen, Humphrey won seven. Each candidate may gain additional support among 32 other delegates. With 30 percent of the precincis tallied, Sen. McGovern's state had 175,246 votes to 146,965 for Sen. Humphrey's. President Nixon won easily against token opposition.

NEW MEXICO—Sen. McGovern won a narrow victory but will share the state's 18 delegates with Gov. Wallace. With 98 percent of the precincts reported Sen. McGovern had 49.457 votes, 33 percent; Gov. Wallace 43,520 votes, 29 percent, and Sen. Humphrey 38,487 votes, 26 percent. President Nixon won the Lepublican primary but California's Rep. Paul N. McCloskey gained one of the state's 14 convention delegates. Jack Daniels won the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate seat being vacated by Clinton P. Anderson.

SOUTH DAKOTA-Unopposed, Sen. McGovern won his home state's 17 delegates to the convention. President Nixon, also unopposed, got the state's 14 delegates to the national MISSISSIPPI-Sen, James O. Eastland triumphed in his Democratic primary bid for an unprecedented sixth term, getting 70 percent of the votes. James Meredith was beaten by businessman Gil Carmichael for the Republican nomination to the Senate seat.

Humphrey, in Reversal, Calls Wallace Acceptable on Ticket

HOUSTON, June 7 (AP).-Sen. and Sen, Humphrey ruled out the presidential nomination, reversed himself today and said he could, under some circumstances, accept Gov. George C. Wallace as a vicepresidential running mate

Sen. Humphrey denied that he contradicted an earlier position. He also said it is highly unrealistic to expect himself and Gov. Wallace to be on the same ticket. Nonetheless, his statement, after a round of private meetings with Southern governors, left open the possibility.

Sen. Humphrey had ruled it out flatly in a joint television appearance with Sen. George Mc-Govern a week ago in Los Angeles. Sen. McGovern won yesterday's California primary and three others, taking a giant step toward the nomination. During the nationally televised appearance, both Sen. McGovern

Hubert H. Humphrey, battered possibility of choosing Gov. Walby a California primary defeat lace to run for Vice-President. in his bid for the Democratic Gov. Wallace has been hospitalized since May 15, when he was shot while campaigning. Sen. Humphrey emphasized today the importance of keeping Humphrey said that if he won the nomination and if Gov. Wallace supported the Democratic platform, he could accept the Alabama governor as a vicepresidential nominee.

In the television interview in Los Angeles last week, Sen. Humphrey said he couldn't accept Gov. Wallace as a running mate. "I do not believe that George Wallace and Hubert Humphrey have that much in common on platform and philosophy," he said

On Appeal Backed by Administration

U.S. Court Voids Richmond Busing Order and the State Board of Education

By Ben A. Franklin RICHMOND, Va., June 7

(NYT).-A U.S. Court of Appeals here struck down yesterday a federal judge's five-mouth-old order to merge the schools of Richmond with those of two adjoining counties. It ruled that the order went beyond the judicial authority of the courts. The reversal, which had been ought by lawyers for the Nixon administration, threw out a sweeping ruling by a lower court regarded as the most potentially far-reaching school desegregation Louis R. Locas, 36-year-old Memphis lewyer retained by the NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund, Inc., as its chief trial counsel in the Richmond case, said last January that "the issue here is, are we going to have another South Africa in this country-are we going to have another nation of apartheld? I think this case may decide it.'

An appeal to the Supreme Court was regarded here as certain. That court overruled the Appeals Court here in April, 1971, and upheld the desegregation, on a metropolitan basis, of schools in Charlotte, N.C. The opinion in that case seemed to invite further desegregation on metropolitan bases.

In this case, the withdrawal of Justice Lewis P. Powell, recently appointed to the court by President Nixon, could lead to an unpredictable split of eight justices. Justice Powell, a Virginian, was formerly a member of both the Richmond City School Board here, and would almost certainly disqualify himself.

The five-to-one opinion here yesterday by the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals reversed the order last January of District Judge Robert R. Merhige jr. that the nominally integrated, but when he was arraigned on a charge of carrying a dangerous weapon in his car. He was held in lieu of $30,000 bail and is scheduled for a court hearing of Richmond and its two affluent, predominantly white suburban countles—Henrico and Chesterfield-must be merged into ona "metro" school system. The effect of Judge Merhige's order, had it stood, would have been to require the busing across city and county lines this September of 78,000 of the 101,000 students in the Richmond metropoli-They would have been placed under a single school system 66 percent white and 34 percent black.

Some 68,000 students here already are being bused within tha under a previous order by Judge Merhige, His school-merger order, however, said that intracity busing to equalize the blackwhite ratio in the Richmond city schools was not satisfactorily ending pupil segregation in a city with a population that is mostly hlack. The 43,060-student school enrollment in Richmond is 30 percent white and 70 percent black, while Henrico County's 34,000 pupils and Chesterfield County's 24,000 pupils are both 81 percent white. The Richmond merger case was originally brought by the NAACP Defense Fund and later joined. as a plaintiff favoring the merger scheme, by the Richmond City School Board. On appeal, the Justice Department supported the defendant suburban counties.

A spokesman for the department said of the opinion hera yesterday that "we got what ws asked for," and officials in tha Richmond suburbs were jubilant.

Allon Rejects Bid to Restore Death Penalty in Lydda Case

ters).—Israel'a Deputy Premier Yigal Allon today rejected the idea of imposing the death sentence on the sole survivor of the Arab-recruited Japanese suicide squad which carried out last week's massacre at Lydda Airport.

Mr. Allon was replying to a group of students who submitted a petition demanding the death sentence for Kozo Okamoto,

The deputy premier said he opposed the death sentence as such and that its imposition would not produce any beneficial results.

The death sentence was abolished by Israel shortly after its creation as a state. However, it was retained on the law books for Nazi war crimes and under the emergency military regulations kept from the British mandate era.

Only one person has been executed in the state's 24-year history-Nazi mass murderer Adolf Eichmann.

Defense Minister Moshe Dayan suggested Monday that Lirael might reconsider the issue of the death penalty in view of the

British Official Ends China Visit

HONG KONG, June 7 (NYT). -A senior British Foreign Office official said here after a visit to Peking that relations between Britain and China are on a "very satisfactory footing" and will prosper in the future.

Speaking at a news conference, Anthony Royle, parliamentary under secretary for foreign and Commonwealth affairs, declared, "We understand each other. We differ on many subjects, but I think the enchange of views which I had cannot be anything but valuable for future relations between Great Britain and the People's Republic of China."

Tokyo on Alert

TOKYO. June 7 (AP).-Police posted extra guards at Tokyo's 90 foreign diplomatic missions, with emphasis on the Israeli Embassy, and intensified a search for a Japanese terrorist believed to have been sent on a mission of assassination.

The precautionary measures followed a report from Tel Aviv that Okamoto had said that a fourth terrorist had returned to Japan. He reportedly told his Israeli interrogators that Osamu Maruoka had been sent back to Japan by the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine to assassinate government leaders and foreign diplomats there.

Okamoto reportedly said that Maruoka, a former Kyoto University student, had been trained in terrorist activities by Arab organizations but that he was not at the Lydda massacre.

Meanwhile, Asahi Shimbun, Japan's largest newspaper, said that police had issued a nationwide elert for a fifth Japanese terrorist, identified as a former Ritsumeikan University student, who might be "acting in league" with Maruoka,

He predicted that if one major Democratic candidate dropped out and supported him, "that would do it." But he added that he would not press either Sen. Humphrey or Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine for an endorsement or withdrawal at this time.

The four primaries yesterday were the last of the long primary season save one, the New York primary two weeks from now in which Sen, McCovern is expected to both you have yes to the control of the con to pick up a large majority of the 278 delegates. Just three months after the first contest, in New Hampshire on March 7, they left Sen, Mc-Govern well ahead in a race he had entered as a distinct underdog. Sen. Muskie, the front-run-ner before the primaries, dropped his active candidacy after a series of weak showings.

Sen. Muskie was reported by Democratic sources today to be considering dropping the last vestiges of his candidacy, and that he probably would endorse Sen. McGovern.

In the other primaries yesterday, the biggest surprise was Gov. Wallace's strong showing in New Mexico. Gathering strength in rural areas, he hat-tled Sen. McGovern to the wire. Sen. Humphrey, with 26 percent, finished third and won no delegates despite the backing of Gov. Bruce King and Sens. Clinton P. Anderson and Joseph M. Montoya. Sen. McGovern campaign managers in New Jersey were trying today to line up all the state's delegates behind their candidate, but the breakdown of the whole 109, dividing the uncommitted delegates toward their current leanings, would give Sen. Mc-Govern 85 and Sen. Humphrey 24. New Jersey's delegation is the eighth largest to the couvention. In Senate primaries, Sen.

Sihanouk Says Geneva Parley Would Fire 3d Indochina War

By Harrison E. Salisbury

PEKING, June 7 (NYT).-Prince Norodom Sihanouk, the exiled Cambodian leader, said in an interview here yesterday that he was unsiterably opposed to any Geneva-type conference to end the Indochina war.

"Such a meeting," the prince said with a sweeping gesture of his hands, "would only provide the entracte for the third Indochina war." He said that it would result in the partition of Laos into eastern and western sections and Cambodia into a Phnom Penh region for the government of President Lon Nol. "with the rest of the country in our hands." He said that it would also produce three Vietnams-North Vietnam and two southern se Saigon and one for the Viet Cong. The prince said that a Geneva-type conference had been proposed by the Soviet Union along with France and Britain, but that he, North Vietnam, the Viet Cong and the Pathet Lao opposed such a meeting and be had asked Chins to do the same.

Looking fit and trim, the prince, speaking in English, gave the in-terriew in the spacious quarters of the former French Embassy in Peking, where he now lives and maintains his government in exile. He was seated in a highceilinged reception room, decorated with a huge photograph of himself and Mao Tse-tung.

Prince Sihanouk repeatedly expressed affection for the United States and said Premier Chou En-lai had attempted to arrange a meeting between himself and President Nixon when the President was in Peking. But, tha prince said, the President declined. "Nixon was not yet ready to abandon military action," Prince Sibanouk said in discussing the President's refusal to see him,

U.S. Would Cut Its Contributions To UN Agencies

WASHINGTON June 7 (AP).

The United States has issued a 14-point policy statement to bring about economy in spending by U.S. missions connected with the United Nations, its related agencies and other international organizations. In a memorandum circulated by the U.S. mission in Geneva to U.S. missions attached to the United Nations and its agencies, the State Department said the austerity principle set out for federal expenditures must also apply to international groups. The memo said the United States will seek a reduction of its assessment by international organizations to 25 percent of the total cost of a program, where it exceeds that figure. The aim of the U.S. policy, according to the memo, is to keep expenditure levels at their current size "for several years." There should be no ncrease in program levels :-cept for adding new and fully justified" programs, and those should be adopted "only at the expense of older programs of lesser priority." the memorandum stated. The United States opposes any increase in salaries and any new construction. In general political organiza tions, the assessment should be not only related to the ability of a nation to pay but based on the "relative influence" a member can exercise and on "the benefits derived from membership."

"but I think it is foolish because the more the government of the

"It is terrifying," he said "that to quote the draft declaration, immense resources continue to be consumed in armaments and armed conflict, wasting and threatening still further the human environment.

"We think it essential." the premier continued, "that the Stockholm conference unequivocally proclaim the aim that this trend be broken, although we know that work toward its fulfillment must take place in other fors. The disarmament conference in Geneva continues to work for the elimination of nuclear, biological and chemical weapons.

"The immense destruction brought about by indiscriminate bombing, by large-scale use of bulldozers and herbicides, is an cotrage sometimes described as ecocide, which requires urgent international attention.

"It is shocking that only preliminary discussions of this matter have been possible so far in tha United Nations and at the conferences of the International Committee of the Red Cross, where it has been taken up by my country and others. We fear that the active use of these methods is coupled by a passiva resistance to discuss them."

The premier did not name the United States, but his allusion was unmistakable, as Mr. Train noted in his protest.

There had been public pressura for some time for Sweden to try to force the Vietnam question into the formal conference agenda, from which the issue had been excluded during nearly two years of drafting work by the UN's membership. Mr. Palme's informal mention of it in his presentation was widely interpreted as a gesture primarily for national political consumption. Mr. Train said tonight that he

The arrival of Mrs. Onassis at the Kennedy Center Monday night precipitated a crush of people, applause and "bravos." She had made no formal appearance Washington since President Kennedy was buried on Nov. 25.

Her First Visit

According to her mother, Mrs. D. Auchincloss, and the center's general director, William Mc-Cormick Blair, Mrs. Onassis had never been inside the great maible structure, named in the Prestdent's honor.

"It's beautiful. It's just beautiful," she murmured to her companions as she flung her head up to look at the banners and crystal chandeliers dangling from the lofty cellings of the Hall of Nations and the Grand Foyer.

Mrs. Onassis wore a deep green and blue-printed chiffon gown, with a flutter of ruffles at the sleeves and hem. She was flanked as she moved through the crowd outside the opera house by composer Bernstein and Roger L. Stevens, the board chairman of the Kennedy Center.

A Wide Smile

The three tiers of balconies outside the opera house, facing the Grand Foyer and a gigantic bust of President Kennedy, were jam-med with a frieze of excited faces. The people burst into applause as Mrs. Onassis came slowly up the red-carpeted stairs that lead to the hox tier. A wide smile never left her face.

Defense Confident on Jury Selection

Many Factors in Angela Davis Acquittal

By Philip Hager

SAN JOSE, Calif., June 7.-On March 17, attorney Les Branton ir, rose in court and said, "Your honor, the defense accepts the jury as presently constituted." At the moment, her lawyers were all but certain that the jurors selected would find Angela Davis innocent of murder, kidnapping and conspiracy charges.

Last Sunday night, after acquitting the defendant on all three counts, members of the jury indicated they had never seriously considered bringing in a guilty

Some of their actions spoke louder than words.

One juror, a 39-year-old maintenance electrician originally from Montana, waved a clenched-fist salute to a jubilant crowd of Miss Davis's supporters outside the changed champagne togate with the 28-year-old black militant. Lawyers and other courtroom observers believe Miss Davis's case was won largely because of the following factors:

• Jury selection. The defense painstakingly investigated pros-pective jurors in the case, seeking to find at least unprejudiced, if not sympathetic, panel members. Psychologists studied mannerisms and expressions of prospective jurors as they were questioned. A handwriting expert studied their signatures, looking for personality characteristics. Volunteer investigators, armed with reports furnished by the prosecution, explored the backgrounds of the prospective jurors. • The burden of "reasonable doubt," The prosecution offered an admittedly circumstantial case—that Miss Davis, while not present at the scene, had helped plot the Aug. 7, 1970, Marin County Civic Center kidnapping attempt that resulted in the deaths of a judge and three abductors. The defense hammered at the lack of direct evidence, reminding the jury that the defendant need not testify and that the state had the burden of proving her guilt beyond a reasonable doubt.

• Her release on bail. Miss Davis had spent 16 months in jail, but was released on $102,500 bail just before her trial. Thus, to the jurors, she was not presented as a "dangerous" person, but as a "free" woman whom they would have to send to prison for life if they convicted her. Her lawyers' skill. defense team of four attorneys was highly effective, as evidenced by the outcome of the trial.

 Miss Davis herself. Acting as her own co-counsel, the defendant, who did not testify, nonetheless presented an articulate and well-organized opening statement declaring her innocence. Her charge that the state's case was based on the "male chauvinism" of the prosecution-which had declared her motive for the involvement was her "passionate love" for con-George Jackson-seemed well aimed at a jury of seven women and five men.

The commission, acting unanimously, overruled its chief hearing examiner, recommending that airmail fares be kept at 11 cents an ounce instead of the hearing examiner's proposed 13 cents and that ordinary postcards carry only 6 cents postage instead of the postal service's requested 7 cents

It estimated the savings alone on ordinary postcards at $25

The commission let stand the current temporary 8-cent-anounce charge for first-class mail.

"women's liberation" was a primary factor in the verdict, the jurors acknowledged that it was the basis for their selection of a woman as foreman. The woman they chose, Mrs. Mary M. Timothy of Palo Alto, signed the verdict as "Ms. Timothy, foreperson.

Ralph E. Delange told why he had given the clenched-fist salute to Miss Davis's supporters. "It was a spontaneous thing ... to show a unity of opinion for all oppressed people, to show I felt a sympathy for the people in the crowd," he said. "I just wanted to show them that we were not just a white, middle-class jury." 1 Los Angeles Times

French General Strike Held Italy Phones, To Be Only Partial Success Newspapers

PARIS, June 7 (IHT).—A one-day nationwide general strike today by France's largest labor union had only partial success, and tonight was branded a fallure by the government.

The lack of response to the strike called by the Communistled Confédération Générale du Travail was most noticeable in Paris public transport, which was affected by no more than 20 percent. The CGT has 1.7 miliion registered members.

The strike was more successful among metalworkers, miners, dockers and construction workers and retirement at 60 with a monthly pension of 800 francs. The other principal unions said the strike would be ineffective and did not participate.

Thousands Stay Home

in the Paris area, thousands of people-particularly suburbanites-stayed home in fear of the strike's effects. Aside from a trainmen's strike and a walkout of garbage collectors, however, there was little reduction in essential services.

Most major ports on the Atlantic and the Mediterranean were affected by the strike. Marseilles tugs atayed at their berths but port officials reported several freighters docked without assis-

Throughout Prance, the strike was scarcely followed in the industrial sector, particularly in the automobile industry. The Renault plants reported only 10 percent of the working force struck at one factory, 6 percent at another. This morning, a crowd estiat between 50,000 and 100,000 in Paris marched in support of the strike

The walkout's lukewarm success appeaently prompted the to claim this CGT leadership efternoon that the government and private business had "exerted pressure" on radio and television networks to minimize the strike's effects. This was promptly denied by the networks.

Printers stopped work at the plants of Turin's newspaper La Stampa overnight. In Naples, the daily paper Il Matino was in the eighth day of a printers' strike. All major papers were in for a one-day nationwide printers' strike starting tonight.

At issue is the so-called "Monday edition" of the daily newspapers. The publishers want to drop the Monday editions. The unions object that this would cost employees the overtime pay which they get for working on Sunday for Monday publication. Most papers in Italy are published seven days a week.

Mr. Brandt's Reminder

Chancellor Willy Brandt has taken a generous and highly unusual way of reminding the United States and the entire world of "the ties that link America inseparably" with Western Europe. It was especially fitting that he should do so at a Harvard convocation commemorating the 25th anniversary of Secretary of State George C. Marshail's proposal of the European recovery

As a memorial to the Marshall Plan, the West German government will donate $47 million over 15 years to an independent American foundation to finance studies in this country of Europe, American-European relations and problems common to advanced industrial nations soch as those of Europe and North America. In addition, Bonn will give Harvard $900,000 this year as a "German Marshall Memorial Endowment" to promote European study projects.

The late secretary of state, wartime army chief of staff and Nobel Peace laureate, would have been pleased at this kind of memorial. He would doubtless have been even more gratified by Mr. Brandt's warning that in this time of change and substantial improvement in East-West relations, "America's presence in Europe is more necessary than ever." It was the dominant, recurring theme of Chancellor Brandt's address at the Harvard University convocation.

Implicit in Mr. Brandt's remarks was recognition of the danger that in disillusionment over the tragic results of an overcommitment in Asia and beset with intracable home-front problems, the United States will cut back drastically its commitment to the common defense in Europe. With a firststep Soviet-American agreement to limit strategic noclear arms, with Bonn's nonaggression treaties with Russia and Poland now ratified, and with the threat evidently removed at last from free West Berlin, the move in Congress and elsewhere for an American withdrawal from Europe may gain momentum.

Mr. Brandt was reminding this country of something it cannot afford to forget, especially in the euphoria over President Nixon's successful trip to Moscow: The limited progress thus far toward easing tensions and normalizing East-West relations in Eorope was made possible by the maintenance of Western onity-by the commitment of the United States, in its own interest, to the economic recovery and the defense of Western Europe.

As the chancellor said at Harvard, "The forms of the American commitment may change, but an actual disengagement would cancel out a basic law of our peace. It would be tantamount to abdication." We are as grateful to Mr. Brandt for the reminder as for the generosity of all parties in the Bundestag in providing a fitting memorial for a statesman who never needed a reminder that America's destiny is linked inextricably with that of Europe.

Baghdad's Gamble

Irag's seizure of the Western-owned consortium, the Iraq Petroleum Co., is a blow to the West, a boon for the Soviet Union and a high-risk gamble for the radical regime in Baghdad.

The expropriation directly affects consortium partners from the United States, Britain, the Netherlands and France who stand to lose much, if not all, of an investment estimated at up to $1 billion. It threatens Western access to an important. though not major, component of Middle East oil fields which, overall, encompass about 70 percent of the world's known reserves. And it could adversely influence delicate negotiations now under way between Western companies and other Middle East oilproducing states.

The West's loss is another gain for Moscow, which has been vigorously exploiting its support of the Arab cause against Israel for military, political and economic advantage throughout the region. The Russians alreadly are helping to develop Algerian oil and are purchasing from Libya small amounts of oil seized from the British last December. Last April Soviet Premier Kosygin participated in the opening of a rich, new Iraqi oil field, developed with Russian assistance after its seizure from the consortium 11 years ago.

The question for the Iragis is whether the Russians or others can furnish a ready market for the ootpot of the newly seized flelds and provide the hard cash urgently needed to sustain development programs that until now have been heavily dependent on revenues from the consortium. If they cannot, the Ba'athist regime could be in serioos trouble. Even if the Russians do come through with a substitute for Western markets, the regime, already obliged to accept two Communists in high government posts, can expect to pay a heavy political price for its abrupt break with the Western In the long run, there is an inevitable trend toward the acquisition of foreign-Owned assets by the oil-prodocing states, both as an expression of national sovereighty and as a means of maximizing returns from oil resources for domestic development. Although this trend may be accelerated by Arab-Israeli tensions and by Soviet opportunism, both sides should be constrained to moderation by two hard realities—the West's compelling need for Middle East oil, which is increasing even in the United States, and the concurrent need of Middle Eastern states for Western markets and the hard cash they provide. If the jubilant Russians press their present advantage too far they may well end up cast in the onerous role of the ousted "imperialists," with embittered and unmanageable clients.

Role of Europe

Facing the positive results of the Moscow talks. Europeans would be wrong not to rejoice. But they would be equally wrong if they did not consider that an agreement between the U.S. and the Soviet Union cannot prodoce effects really beneficial to everyone until the day when Europe can at last play the role of a heeded partner in the dialogue of the big powers, until the day when, thanks to Europe's unity and independence, it becomes an essential element of world equilibrium. This Europe, still in the making, has thus been absent as a partner, but present as an object, in the Moscow talks. President Nixon and Mr. Brezhnev actually discussed the preparation and meeting of a conference called to organize European security. Europe thus has to accept the situation in which the leader of an empire that belongs to the New World, and the leader of an empire that is only partially European, negotiate together on problems that will directly affect its future.

-From Le Figaro (Paris). * * *

Everything points to the conclusion that the future Europe, as far as France L; concerned, will have to bear the stamp of the French views, which is to say that it will have to be made subservient to French interests. It is to be hoped that the other nine nations will not allow themselves to be intimidated by Mr. Pompidou. The community may not make moch headway without France but the Common Market is of such a vital importance to France itself that the other members can easily afford to speak as clear and as harsh a language as Pompidou does.

-From Het Parool (Amsterdam). Protest in South Africa

We respect the courage of the white English-speaking students in South Africa who dare to stage open demonstrations on behalf of black students. We are moved to hear their leader declare they will not be beaten down by police or prime minister. But to fan from outside the sober idealism of these stodents could be as cruel and as pointless as it was to raise the hopes of the young Czechs in 1968.

Questions After the California Primary

By James Reston

WASHINGTON.—The question try to persuade the Democratic now, after the California presidential primary election, is whether the American voters are ready for a radical change in U.S. foreign and domestic policy.

George McGovern is convinced that they are. He thinks he has proved in the state primaries that the people are ready to end the Vietnam war, whatever the ricks, ready to cut the defense hudget substantially, end eager to concentrate on national problems, revolutionize the tax structure, and redistribute the wealth of President Nixon and his aides are not only willing but eager to fight the election out on this issue. They are convinced that they have found a compromise that will carry the majority of the voters and the states, and win the election in November.

Compromises

They are withdrawing from Vietnam, and accepting budget deficits and wage-price controls, to cootrol infletioo and unemployment, and while these are still not working very well, they still think their compromises are more popolar than McGovern's radical solutions.

What is interesting and puzzling about this is that McGovern keeps getting the sopport of workers aod suburbanites who are normally supposed to be against his radical foreign policy, defense and welfare programs.

Still McGovern keeps betting on his radical programs and his young army of radical organizers. Even before the voting in California, he went to New Mexico to pick up a few delegates there, and then went on to Houston to

His argument was very simple. The issue in the November election was not Peking or Moscow, but inflation, ford prices, un-employment. Not bombing of Hanoi and Haiphong but peace. went into effect. The law is the first serious attempt to deal with an alarming level of violent crime and rid Mexico of its image as a nation of "bandidos" and "pistoieros."

Under the new law, all firea.mx must be surrendered or registered, and permission to carry a gun will be granted only in rare circumstances. Each inousehold will be permitted one pistol, which must be kept at home, aithough the government responded to public pressure by ceing to consider a car as an extension of the home.

Brandt Tells East He Wants No Curbs on Wall Pass Rules

BONN. June 7 (Reuters) --Chancellor Willy Brandt today warned East Germany that he expected that rules governing visits to the East by West Berimers would not be applied restrictively. These rules should, on the contrary, be capable of expansion, ha added, in what appeared to be reaction to East German re fusal to hand out immediate passes for visits to East Berlin and East Germany.

Mr. Brandt was making a government statement to the Bimdestag on the coming into effect list Saturday of a four-power agreement allowing West Berilners to visit the East and insuring unimpeded access to West

Most West Berliners who have since applied at special offices for passes for immediate visits have been told by East German officials that they will have to wait four or five days. A few immediate passes were issued for hardship cases.

In meetings between officials of both sides, the East Germans have said that they were holding to the spirit and letter of the agreement. They said that "immediate" issue of passes meant immediately after applications had been processed, apparently implying that this need not necessarily be the same day.

Border Shooting BERLIN, June ? (AF) —East German border guards opened fire twice early today, apparently foiling one more attempt by refugees to reach West Berlin.

Yet these are the very qualities expected of a Fiat. And that includes the Fiat 130. So we designed a big car as easy to drive and as agile as a small one. A contradiction in terms, you might say. But our designers were able to reconcile them by exceptional attention to the driver's needs, and to those features which influence the feel of the car. The steering, for example. And the suspension—independent all round—with a completely original independent rear suspension system, patented by Fiat, which achieves that rare combination—a quiet, soft ride, and roadholding up to sports car standards.

The driver's seat adjusts up and down, as well as fore and aft. So does the steering wheel. There is a hydraulic damper to eliminate road reactions through the steering wheel. And hydraulic power assistance to take the effort out of steering. A brake servo system that makes light work of stopping. A limited-slip differential (standard on the coupé, optional on the

Zurich has some special real sons for doing this work, Two of Busoni's other operas had their world premieres here, and the composer worked on his "Faust" version while living here in exile during World War L Also, Ferdinand Leitner, the Zurich music director, is something of a specialist in this music,

The built-in contradictions that make "Doktor Faust" a more interesting opera in theory than in practice are rooted in the contradictions of Busoni's own life. He is one of those composers who stand both at the end of the romantic era and the threshold of the "new music" of this century, and he was constantly torn between his German and Italian artistic heri-

Thus, in "Doktor Faust," he uses the late romantic orchestral apparatus, but in a less sensuous and more intellectual way than say, Richard Strauss, and while he pays at least lip service to the Italian instinct for melody, it is his Germanic instinct for imposing form that wins the struggle.

Based on Puppet Play

Busoni wrote his own libretto, but unlike the Frenchman Gounod or the Italian Boito, he shrank from using Goethe es his model. Instead he based the story on the medieval pupper play, and it may be this that s partly responsible for the archetypal rather than tangibly human nature of his characters.

Yet the score is fascinating. primarily for what takes place in the orchestra, an' Leitner conducted it powerfully and with understanding, even though he could not realize all of Busoni's

Yet the musically most effective scene in this production was one that on paper seems to be composed merely of philosophical disputation—an effect achieved by the rising conflict between the Protestant and Catholic students in the Wittenberg tavern, climaxing in the contrapuntal outbursts of the "Te Deum" on one side and Luther's "A Mighty Fortress" on the

Hans-Peter Lehmann's handling of this scene successfully made the audible visual, and elsewhere throughout his staging he achieved an effective balance between the symbolic and the realistic. Sometimes his effects were too tangible-as in the succession of erotic visions that Faust conjures up to seduce the Duchess of Parmaand not sufficiently remote and dreamlike.

Max Röthlisberger's sets used the same mixture of realism and symbolism to evoke the atmosphere of each scene and to handle fluidly the drastic changes of venue. A circular ramp enclosed the main playing area, while overhead a metallic assembly of rings and various symbols of medieval alchemy helped to impose the same unity on the whole that Busoni sought in musical forms. His use of projections, foreground and background, was effective.

Olof Eliasson sang powerfully and acted and enunclated with hard clarity as the protesn, heldentenor Mephisto. Roland Hermann began rather stiffly as Faust, but he sang with warmth and rich power, and his portrayal gathered human dimension as Faust's tor-tured life ran its foreordained course.

DANCE IN LONDON

The final item, "Cows and Ruins," started with the dancers splashing their feet in a metal basin of water and ended with Mirjam Berns, the boylsh leading girl, tottering in point shoes with her legs tied in splints, hold-ing an electrically vibrating starspangled banner. Quite apart from its total lack of dance content, this seemed more like kindergarten humor than subtle Kindergarten humor is evidently in vogue just now in modern dance circles. "Dance," the ironically-titled full-evening work presented earlier at The Place (it contained no dancing at all), was full of it. Devised by yet another American graduate from a famous dance company—Remy Charlip, formerly with Merce Cunninghem-it allowed the pleasant and attractive young members of the Lordon Contemporary Dance Theatre to tell us about their youth, play such party games as forming two teams to imitate machines and guess each other's intentions, and improvise movements to words called out by the audience. At one point a girl paddled in paint and then hopped about on a piece of paper; the resulting "painting" was suctioned, very skillfully, and bought by a mem-

Concocted by Richard Alston, a very young English dancer who is believed by the Arts Council and the Gulbenkian Foundation to have creative talent, it started with four couples doing rather dull imitations of the ballroom dances of the forties. They then changed into white track suits and ran purposelessly around the auditorium, cycled around the stage, sat motionless at a table which they shifted to different positions, and performed some simple dance steps in practice dress. Films of the same dancers in class were also shown; sometimes on one screen and sometimes on two or three, slightly out of synchronization with each other. like the films shown on the different screens of a jumbe, jet. ## Legend Comes Back to Life In San Carlo Production

By William Weaver

NAPLES, June 7 (IHT) -After the successful revivals of works like "Roberto Devereux" and "Maria Stuarda," Donizetti's serious operas are gradually becoming better known; and the outlines of his composing career are more distinct. The very last years of that career, however, have remained the least explored. His final opera, "Dom Sebastien," written for Paris, is seldom heard; and Caterina Cornaro -his last opera to be presented during his lifetime—was, until this past week, hardly more than a legend. A few enthusiasts who had been able to study the score insisted on the opera's merit; but the score is hard to come by, and it was impossible to verify this enthusiastic view.

Now thanks to a series of performances at the Teatro San Carlo in Naples, opera-goers have been able to decide for themselves about "Caterina Cornaro," and to judge by the heady applause the verdict is unanimously favorable. Clearly, there was no decline in Donizetti's powers before the onset of his fatal illness towards the "Catherina Cornaro" was composed mostly in 1842-3, and was presented first at the San Carlo in January, 1844. It was hadly received (Donizetti blamed the singers), and except for a production the following year in Parma, it seems to have vanished from the repertory until now.

Its absence was a loss, for the work is full of beautiful times strong dramatic situations, and unusually subtle and compelling orchestral writting. The libretto, though written in execuble Italian, is—until the last act—spare, direct and cogent. The final scene, though musically effective (with a great operatic death for the baritone), is more of a code than a climax. Still, with stirring interpretation, it can work in the theater.

In this Naples revival, the title role (and hence the final cabaletta) was sung by the intropid Leyla Gencer, who has been the protagonist of many important revivals. The voice is not beautiful, and when the singer has to push it, the sound becomes thin and barsh. For much of this performance, Miss Gencer was unusually restrained, at times almost detached. In the more melancholy passages (such as her first big aria, "Vieni o to"), she effectively indicated the lyricism of the music; the dramatic scenes came off less well, and there were some really nely high notes. Here devoted following was in attendance, and she received personal

The Spanish tenor Jaime (or Giacomo, here) Aragall, except for a couple of off-pitch moments, sang with straightforward winning ardor; and the baritone, Renato Bruson, was equally appealing and musical. Perhaps the high point of the opera—at least in this performance—is their long duet in the first act, as charged with emotion and as beautiful as the comparable scene in Verdi's "Le Forza del Destino." Plinio Clabassi, the bass villain, did not fully reveal the beauty of his music. The chorus, especially the ladies, sounded tentative; the orchestra, under Carlo Felice Cillario, played with unusual precision and sensitivity.

Nicola Benois's traditional sets were poorly lighted, but service able. The staging, by Alberto Fassini, included some unnecessary movements for the chorus and a good deal of pacing back and forth for the soprano; still, it did not detract from the strong impact of this fascinating score, all the more delightful for being heard in the lovely San Carlo, which has welcomed "Caterina Cornaro" back after more than a century.

Iapanese Plan Irish Auto Units

Two leading Japanese car manufacturers, Toyota and Nissan, ere planning to establish ear essembly plants in Ireland. Toyota, Japan's biggest car maker, has agreed to atort assembly operations on a knockdown system towards the end of September. Nissan, the second largest car firm, says it has received ollers for local assembly operations in Ireland. Both say their plans are chiefly aimed at surmounting "prohibitive" import duties of 75 percent levied on assem-hied car imports into the country. Toyota denled reports that it was attempting to make its new firm a beachbead for sales to Britain and the EEC after Iraland's entry into the Common Market. Toyota says its production would be started at a monthly rate of about 100 to 200 units and it hoped to increase the capacity to 400 units a month in a few years.

Russia Reportedly Selling Platinum

New York dealers say Russia is selling platinum to the world market as the price rises. Sources representing the Soviet Union declined to comment. Increased demand for platinum appeared last month after it was indicated that ear manufacturers would use it in catalysts to contro auto emissions. So far, according to some auto industry leaders, platinum appears to be the best performer in 20 to 25 catalyst materials under study. In the past week, the price for piatinum futures has risen a'most $30 an ounce.

BACHDAD, June 7 (AP-DJ1,-The Russians lately have been scoring economic and diplomatic gains in the Mideast-an area that possesses two-thirds of the world's known oil reserves.

an image of a benevolent big brother. In Syria, for instance, a giant dam on the Euphrates built with Soviet aid will irrigate 1.5 million acres and generate 300,000 kilowatts of power when completed. Soviet help in de-veloping Iraq's North Rumalia oil field, nationalized in 1961 but placed in production only last April, is another major project. Later in May, Iraq's government placed two Communists in ministerial posts, the first time Communists have been invited into a Mideastern government in this fashion. A Western European diplomat says: "The timing of these appointments shows that Iraq certainly wanted to place its relationship with the Soviet Union on a firm foundation as it nationalized oil properties." Last week, Iraq nationalized part of the holdings of Iraq Petroleum Co. (IPC). On May 14 Russia strengthened its ties to Syria with the signing of a military treaty.

Algeria has rebuffed any tightly blnding pact with Moscow. Nonetheless, its key oil-technicians' training center is controlled by Soviet instructors and its oil industry is infused with Russian experts and technicians. Last year Algeria nationalized 51 percent of French interests in its oil; in 1970 five other foreign companies wera nationalized.

· Oil-the fourth prong-is especially important, with nationalization more than just an idle threat over oil properties. The Communists provide oil markets, which give the Arabs more flexibility in their moves to squeeze international oil companies. With the Russians able to meet all their own oil requirements. the question is why they should Mideast oil. The answer is that It is not sure that it can meet the demands of its allies. In the future, Russia would like to become the middleman for Mideastern oil, supplying its allles and perhaps other nations as well. Still, the Soviet Union will be hard-pressed to take all Iraq's nationalized oil. It may not have the tanker capacity. It does not need that oil for itself at present. It does not have the hard cash to pay for it. This, of course, does not mean that it will not try, probably funneling part of

U.K. Growth Rate Shaved 1.7% to 3.3%

Private Agency Says Official Goal Too High

LONDON, June 7 (AP-DJ),--British economic growth is likely to fall considerably short of the 5 percent per year goal set in March by Chancellor of the Exchequer Anthony Barber, the Na-tional Institute of Economic and Social Research (NIESR) said

In its quarterly review, NIESR said, "By comparison with the official budget forecast of an average rate of growth of 5 percent per annum between the second half of 1973 and the first hall of 1973, our present forecast is for an average of only 3.3 percent." It noted that prior to the

March budget announcement it had said tax cuts of some £2.5 hillion would be required to effect a consumer spending-led reflation large enough to achieve the government's target. It added that the hudget tax cuts "seem likely to raise total demand and output by about two-thirds of the amount we then recommended."

A drop in price competitiveness of U.K. exports-including goods and services—and a forecast of a further decline led NIESR to revise its prediction of export growth in 1973 down to 2.3 from the 2.6 percent forecast previously. A 3 percent increase is predicted for 1973. Imports are forecast to rise 7.5 percent this year, against a previous forecast of 5.1 percent. The forecasts are made despite the assumption of fairly high levels of unemployment persisting, NIESR said.

French Raise Estimate

PARIS, June 7 (AP-DJ).-French Finance Minister Valery Giscard d'Estaing has revised upward this year's estimated economic growth to 5.3 from the 5.2 percent initially forecast. He forecast a 5.8 percent rise next

He said 1972's upward revision is due to higher-than-expected first-quarter exports and domestic demand, as well as to the gov-ernment's support measures.

He also revised upward the inflationary rate for 1972 to 5.1 from 3.9 percent initially forecast and warned that continued 'excessive" increases in costs and prices will erase French competi-

He predicted a rise in retail prices next year of less than 5 percent compared with the current annual rate of 5.6 percent.

Japan'e Estimate Revised TOKYO, June 7 (AP-DJ) .-

Japan's gross national product for the year ended March 31. 1972, totaled 80,878 billion yen ($262.6 billion), up 10.5 percent in nominal terms and 5.7 percent in real terms from the previous year, the Economic Planning Agency estimated resterday. It sald the growth rates were slightly higher than those estimated by the government earlier-9.5 percent in nominal terms and 4.3

National income per capita was estimated at about the equivalent of $1,840, up 16 percent from 1970 partly because of the yen revaluation, it said.

Big Board Prices Skid; McGovern Is Blamed

Prices on the New York Stock Exchange continued to slide today, and some observers blamed it on Sen. George McGovern. "People are worried about Mc-Govern and his plans for raising taxes and redistributing weath," one source declared. The South Dakota aenator now looms as the leading contender for the Democratic presidential nomination after his victories in four etate primaries yesterday.

The Dow Jones industrial average toppled 7.38 to 944.8 today after losing 2.93 yesterday. Over the last three sessions, the Dow has dropped 17.31. On each of these days, moreover, losers have outpaced winners by 2-to-1, un-derscoring the market's broadbased technical weakness.

Levitz Furniture, plummeting to 41 1/4, was today's volume leader. It sold during the day at a 1972 low of 40 3.4, which compares with a record price of 60 1,2 set earlier this year.

Stein Rules Out New Devaluation

WASHINGTON, June 7 (Reuters).--Herbert Stein, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, eaid yesterday that the adminis-tration does not expect any further devaluation of the dollar. Testifying at a House Ways and Means Committee hearing on the debt limit bill, Mr. Stein said he expected the recent devaluation to start having an effect on the nation's adverse trade balance by the end of the year. He did not give a figure on what the trada situation will be by then, but said he anticipated a significant improvement with the rate of the deficit reduced. On the devaluation matter, Mr. Stein sald at another point. "We don't expect another one, but I have the recollection that the French went through 30 since 1919 and they seem to be in fairly good shape."

Mr. Stein supported an administration request for a $15-billion increase in the government borrowing authority, putting the nadonal debt limit to a record $465 He also said that the gross national product would be in ex-cess of an earlier target of $1,145 billion by the end of 1972.

Gold-mining stocks, selling at their highest levels of 1972, contimued to glitter in reflection of the beam in the free market price. Gains of more than a point each appeared in Dome Mines, Campbell Red Lake and American-South African Investment.

The attraction to precious-metal stocks also lent luster to the elivers. Hecla Mining rose 1 1/4 to 17 1/2 and Sunshine Mining gained 3.8 to 8 1/4.

Benguet Consolidated, the Big Board'e best percentage gniner. climbed 7.8 to 6 1.2. The company conducts mining operations in the Philippines.

Airline types leveled off after dropping in the three previous sessions, a price downdrift that stemmed from investor disap-pointment over May traffic figures. UAL rose 1 1/2 to 45 1/2 in active trading and Delta climbed 1 5 8 to 51 5 8.

American Israeli Paper was the most active issue for the third consecutive session and added 5.8 at 15 3/4. The compart Monday reported higher annual earnings and declared a dividend. How-ever, its rise also has been attributed in part to investor interest in the Wankel engine. Braniff Airways class "A" was second most active, closing un-changed at 16 1/2. Ozark Airlines fell 1/2 to 9 1/4, It said if reduced subsidy rates, proposed by a U.S. agency, take effect, Ozark will have an adjusted first four months profit lower that last year.

The over-the-counter market moved in the same direction, with the NASDAQ index closing at 140.65, off 1.12.

On the bond market, govern ment intermediates maintained their slight gains while the corporate sector drifted a bit to close about 1/8 of a point lower. Dealers said there seems to be a lack of conviction that precludes mounting a firm advance from the current price levels.

St Michael Marks & Spencer Ltd

Another record year Sales: £463,022,000. Profits: £53,766,000

The 46th Annual General Meeting of the Company was held at The Dorchester Hotel, Park Lune, London, W.1. on Tuesday, 6th June, 1972. The following are extracts from the statement by Mr. J. Edward Sieff, Chairman:

The late Lord Sieff: an Appreciation

The late Lord Sieff: an Appreciation
Lord Sieff, our President, passed away on 14th February, 1972. He was, with the late Lerd Marks, joint architect of our business. He was a man of great charm who was loved and admired by a very large number of people, beyond the confines of our offices and stores and, indeed, beyond the shores of this country.
His major contribution was in conceiving the indea and developing in practice the close and harmonious relationship between Marks and Spencer and its manufacturers. With his experience of textiles Lord Sieff laid the foundations for the Marks and Spencer clothing business.
Lord Sieff was always interested in human and social problems and, above all, in people. His inspiration extended over the last forty years to national economic problems and many were the great causes he championed and befriended. He was a man of tolerance and peace; to the last enthusiastic and optimistic about the future. His philosophy and the principles which he formulated will remain a treasured example to his successors.

The Year's Results

The Year's Results

I am pleased to announce that our sales and profits have once again reached new records. Our gross sales have increased by £46,337,000 to £463,022,000 compared with £416,685,000 last year. In comparing these figures, it should be borne in mind that last year comprised 53 trading weeks against 52 in this year. Of the total, store sales amounted to £453,460,000 and export sales to £9,562,000.

Our total profit for the year before tax has increased from £50,115,000 to £53,766,000. From this must be deducted Corporation Tax amounting to £19,350,000, leaving the sum of £34,416,000 available for distribution.

The Directors recommend a final dividend of 21½ per cent, Last year the dividend was the equivalent of 23½ per cent calculated on the Share Capital as increased by the scrip issue made in August.

Profits have been reached after charging £1,270,000 representing the cost of exceptional price reductions in April and Jniy last year which we introduced immediately in response to the reduction of Purchase Tax rates and to the halving of Selective Employment Tax. The Year's Results

99% British Goods

99% British Goods
It has been the policy of our business for nearly half a century to purchase as much of our merchandise as possible from British suppliers. We shall maintain this policy as long as we can obtain from our home based manufacturers goods of the right qualities in attractive styles and at competitive prices.

The volume of demand which we generate in our stores provides employment for a large number of people throughout the United Kingdom. This is an important consideration at a time when many people are facing the hardship and indignity of being out of work, through no fault of their own.

Store Desployment

out of work, through no fault of their own.

Store Development

In the current financial year we have added 250,000 sq. ft. of selling space. We have built three new stores—in Basidon, Bootie and Salford—and a much enlarged store in Southport on a new site. Furthermore, extensive development plans have already been made covering several years ahead and involving the expenditure of nearly 220,000,000 per annum. It is noteworthy that this year we did not need any additional finance for our capital development and we expect to be self-financing for some years to come.

A desirable feature in many of our new developments is the building, by the property developer, of the traffic-free precinct and adequate public car parks for customers.

There is a pressing national need to improve and preserve the existing centres in towns which have developed over the years along with commercial, business, cultural and other social activities. Haphazard shopping centre development out of town must not be allowed to cause urban decay in town centres and add to the crossion of green belts or agricultural land.

'St Michael' Clothing

St Michael Clothing During the last financial year our clothing sales, which include our lootwear and bousehold textiles departments, have grown by £29,044,000 to £326,899,000.

£29.044,000 to £326,809,000.

The increasingly fashion-conscious customer—and this goes now for men as well as women—demands a much faster rate of change in colours and styles, calling for a flexible production and distribution system.

Our technologists keep abreast of the frequent changes and improvements in the field of raw materials production and it is their task to establish those quality standards sod performance specifications which enable us to put on our counters the kind and quality of 'St Michael' goods which we believe our public wants.

'St Michael' Foods Our food sales this year reached £126,651,000 compared with £109,571,000 last year. We have maintained the impetus in our growth against the background of a difficult year in the food trade. This, we believe, is because of the uncompromisingly high standards of our foods, based on the high grade raw materials we specify and our meticulous control of quality and freshness. The range of 'St Michael' food products is widening but our approach remains highly selective. We have successfully developed new lines of convenience foods and are now experimenting with a small range of specialized frezen foods.

Quality Control

Quality Control

The high and consistent quality of 'St Michael' goods is our primary consideration. The cost of poor quality, in terms of wasted manpower, production, transport, handling and the inconvenience to customers, is very heavy.

Together with our suppliers we are working to ensure that quality production and quality control are improved through better methods, better inspection, better training and, above all, through gnatter awareness and a greater sense of involvement among both management and staff.

Organisation

Organisation

The knowledge of customers' requirements and their reactions to new lines is the essential information on which our business depends. In the kind of organisation we aim to be, there is no substitute for the seeing eye, the hearing ear and friendly, personal contact between staff and customers. The sales assistant always remains the most vital link between the Company and the customer.

We are constantly trying to evolve better and more efficient working methods in our stores. The modified system of self selection in textiles, now operated by half of our stores, speeds up shopping for the customer while making work more interesting for the staff.

Our export sales, which have doubled since the devaluation in 1967, are now approaching £10,000,000.

We have been concentrating our business and developing new forms of co-operation with selected retailers abroad. We believe in long-term development based on mutual understanding, encouraged by frequent personal contacts and a common approach to merchandising, administration and human relations. We are studying the full implications of Britain's membership of the European Economic Community for us, our suppliers at home and our associates abroad.

Tribute to Manufacturers

I warmly thank our suppliers and their staff for their cooperation and support in the year under review.

The unique relationship we enjoy with our manufacturers has been built up over many years of joint effort to extend and improve the range of 'St Michael' merchandise. Our partnership is based on commercial and technical collaboration between independent companies with a common interest and approach to production, management and human relations.

Tribute to Staff

We are convinced that, in a service industry like retailing, good relations with the public depend very largely on good human relations within the business itself, based on job security, personal satisfaction and well-being. We attribute much of the success of our business over the years to our continued efforts to foster good human relations.

We like to think of Marks and Spencer—staff, management and Directors alike—as members of a family. This implies a shared feeling of belonging and, arising from it, a sense of obligation. It is in this spirit that we operate a wide range of welfare services in which all, including pensioners, can participate and where they can turn for help with personal problems.

I know that you will wish to join me in thanking all our staff in Stores and in Head Office for their devotion and enthusiasm.

INTERNATIONAL EXECUTIVE OPPORTUNITIE

Director European Operations

In the U.S. our company is one of the largest and fastest growing marketers of building materials. But in Europs we've hardly scratched the surface. How's that for opportunity!

This position will headquarter in Europe and have as its principal activities the establishment of distribution of products imported to Europe, the development of sources of material for export to North America, and the identification of acquisition possibilities. Compensation will include salary and a substantial incentive based on performance.

What we need is a marketing-oriented international generalist with 2-3 years' successful experience developing new business opportunities in Common Market countries. Must be multilingual with French required and German desirable. Naturally, we'd like a background in building materials, but that is not absolutely necessary.

Preliminary interviews will be held in Europe in shout four weeks. If this situation sounds like something you want to explore, and you feel you are qualified, we'd like include what we need to know (education, experience, languages and present earnings) to determine if a meeting would be worth your while. Complete confidence, of course.

A small slam is a borderline South could see a possibility for proposition on the diagramed leading the defense astray. deal. It depends primarily on the heart finesse, which is doomed to defeat. But the declarer saw that he could give West a chance to make an error that would be fatal to the defense.

North-South followed the bldding route shown in the diagram. North's jump response to three clubs was forcing, and North followed with four no-trump over three no-trump.

This was somewhat ambiguous. It is not clear whether North intended Blackwood or a natural invitation to slam, but South showed his two aces, and six clubs was reached.

On the face of it, the club slam offers about a 45 percent chance. Even if the heart finesse wins, some declarers might misguess against a 3-0 trump split, But leading the defense astray. He won the opening spade lead in his hand with the ace and led a low trump. West made the routine play of the jack, thereby giving South a chance to make the slam without a heart finesse. When the chib queen won in dummy, South silently cheered and set about eliminating the spades and diamonds. He played the spades first, since West was more likely to follow to three rounds of spades than to three rounds of diamonds.

When West followed to the third round of spades, South was safe, barring the improbability that East held the club ace and not the heart king. .

Dismonds were led, and if West had ruffed the third round, he would have been endplayed im-mediately, forced to lead away from the heart king or concede a ruff-and-sluff. West therefore discarded a spade, but this merely postponed the day of reckoning. A club lead to the ace put West on lead, with no way to defeat the contract.

THE LIONHEADS

By Josiah Bunting, Braziller. 213 pp. $5.95

Reviewed by Thomas Lask

Bunting's novel have pointed success that they ha out, "The Lionheads" is not a extensions of his will, novel about the war in Vietnam, although its action takes place. But nothing is perithere. It's a novel about the isn't for Gen. Lenn't Army: its anatomy, physiology. One of his brigade course thought processes. Written a man he inherited by an Army major, now teaching lacks the spit and po at West Point, it has a sterling silver sheen. It is well crafted: tight, spare, neatly fitted without a wasted syllable, literary curlicue or relaxing grace note. It weapons I imagine Maj. Bunting knows so well how to use. Like them, the details are sub-ordinated to the overall hesign. Put this way, his book sounds like a tendentious documentary, a case history with overtones, a parable to a cited text. It is not. It is a compelling story with a group of rounded characters to further it.

Nevertheless the author is making a point. For he shows the Army as an institution that is hermetic, ingrown and vertically structured, and that by its nature the system it nurtures can take precedence over national and human issues. Personal ambition, service loyalty, compilation of the best public record come to substitute for its function in the republic. It's not that the senior men are incapable or disloyal. On the contrary they are very capable. It is only that little by little they begin to confuse personal interest with national interest. What's good for General Motors must be good for the country.

Like a computer, the officers in "The Lionheads" begin to adjust for error and to respond to information in a way to deliver the results they have been programmed for. Told, for example, that the policy in Vietnam has become one of eleaning out-pockets of the Viet Cong and that the surest way of measuring success is body count, the officers begin to plan actions that will get the best possible body count, even if the figures are only a veneer for the failure of the policy. Sometimes "The Lionheads" reads like another chapter in the history of organization man.

The linchple in the operation in the novel is the head of the 12th Infantry Heiston. Gen. George S. Lemning, an officer of great talent whose ambition it is to become chieffor staff. Thus, he is alert on two fronts: to run-his division in sana a way as not to foreclose on his chance for advancement and to keep a sharp eye on everyone above him who might help him achieve it. Weeding out everyone who does not contribute to the team he needs, book reviewer.

Pitcher Has Yet to Win

Blue Fails But A's Succeed

By Sam Goldaper

NEW YORK, June 7 (NYT) .-The Cakland Athletics are oddl waiting for Vida Blue's first victory, but they're doing nicely without his help.

Blue tried again to win last night and failed, but Reggie Jackson, his roommate on the road and friend all the time, continued to contribute heavily. Jackson, the American League's leading home run hitter, belted his 12th of the season, and second in two days, as the Athletics best the Indians, 7-2, in Cleveland. The A's lead the West by four games.

Blue, a holdout until he signed May 2, failed in his third try as a starter, but he was not the pitcher of record. He has two losses, one in relief and the other as a starter.

Blue, while losing, had at least been a hig drawing card. Last night he was not even that. Only 9,424 fans turned out to see him. The American League's Most Valuabia Player last season— after a 24-8 won-lost record— allowed seven hits and both Cleveland runs before leaving in the seventh. In two previous starts, he lasted five innings each time. Darold Knowles and Roland Pincers, the eventual winner, came out of the bullpen to choke off a Cleveland rally.

The Athletics scored five runs in the last two innings. Sal Bando singled home the deciding run in the eighth and Jackson sparked a four-min ninth-inning rally with a three-run homer. It was one of three hite in five trips in the plate for Jackson.

Angels 4. Tigers 0

Ciyde Wright'a four-hitter snapped Detroit's four-game winning streak and gave California a 4-0 triumph and a split of a doubleheader. The Tigers won the first game, 8-6, in Detroit as Ed Brinkman's threerun homer and a two-run homer Aurelio Rodriguez enabled Mickey Lolich to win his ninth came in 13 decisions.

Detroit gave Lolich a 6-0 advantage, but the left-hander was knocked out in the eighth when the Angels scored three runs. A double by Leo Cardenas drove in two California runs in the second

Red Sox 2, White Sox 8

At Chicago, Sonny Siebert limited the White Sox to four hits as the Boston Red Sox won, It was Siebert's third straight victory, as he outsineled Wilbur Wood.

Boston broke a scoreless tie in the sixth. Doug Griffin bunted Harper's single. Luis Aparicio doubled Harper home.

Texas 6, Yanks 3 Frank Howard homered in the fourth inning and Don Mincher singled home two runs in the sixth to spark the Rangers to a 6-3 victory over the New York Yankees, in Texas, Royals 4, Brewers 3 Lou Piniella stroked a two-run single in the sixth inning to propei Kansas City to a 4-2 home victory over Milwaukee.

Pred Patek and Amos Otis ied off the sixth with singles, Patek stopping at third. After Otis stolc second, Piniella lined a hit to left, scoring both runners.

Astros 4. Phils 2

In the National League, Dave Roberts clouted a two-run homer but needed ninth-inning relief help from Fred Gladding before Houston won in Philadelphia 4-3.

Orioles in Worst Streak Since 1969

BALTIMORE, June 7 (UPI).-Steve Byre singled home Rod Carew with one out in the 15th inning to give the Minnesota. Twins a 5-4 victory over the Bai-timore Orioles last night and extend the American League champions' losing streak to five games, its iongest since 1969.

Rod Carew led off the 15th with a single. With one out, los-ing reliever Mickey Scott walked Bobby Darwin and Brye's single to left scored Carew from second

The Astros scored twn firstinning runs on a single by Bob Watson

Braves 3, Expos 2

Atlanta scored its runs in the third inning, two on a homer by Darrel Evans, as it heat the Expos. 3-2, in Montreal. Felix Millan reached first on a throwing error, went to second when Ralph Garr flied out and took third on Hank Aaron's groundout. Rico Carty's single scored Millan and Evans followed with bis ninth homer.

Dodgers 5, Cubs 9 Al Downing gained his 100th career triumph as Los Angeles defeated the Chicago Cubs. 5-0, at home. It was the second shutout of the season for the former Yankee, who hurled a five-hitter. The Dodgers staked their lefthander to a 3-0 lead in the first as Willie Crawford's single drove in one run and Duke Sims's single batted in two.

Cards 5, Giants 3 Ted Simmons's two-run double during a three-run eighth-inning rally paced St. Louis to a 5-3 victory over the Giants in San Francisco.

Mets 3, Reds 2

Tommle Agee singled in the tie-breaking run in the seventh inning and Tug McGraw pitched two innings of scoreiess relief to save Jim McAndrew's fifth victory as the Mets edged Cincinnati, 3-2, in New York.

The Reds, who had won ning of their last 10 games, scored their runs off McAndrew in the fourth inning on a two-run homer by Johnny Bench, It was Bench's eighth homer in the last seven games and his 14th of the most intriguing parts of me." Sen. George McGovern's tax reform plan is that he would give every man, woman and child in the United States $1,000 a year in cash. The money would be taxable, and the majority of Americans would have to return it. But those in a low enough tax bracket or no tax bracket could keep the mone: guaranteed 2.5 income.

$1,000 for Everyone

for $1,000.

It blows one's Buchwald mind to think what would happen if everyone in this country received a check

It is "Check Day" and Mr. and Mrs. Amberson and their three children-Robert, 17, Sarah, 14, and Todd, 9-have just received their $1,000 allotments from the government with a short note:

"Dear American,

"Enclosed please find a $1,000 check as part of my tax program. If you don't need it. please send it back to the Treasury, as we can use any surplus money you can spare. "Sincerely.

"President George McGovern."

"Oh boy." Robert says. "I can now buy a new motorcycle." "Wait a minute." Mr. Amber-son says. "I want all those checks. I have to pay taxes on them and since we're in the 20.000-dollar-a-year bracket, it all must be returned to the government."

"I'm not giving back my check,"

Gainsborough Work To Be Sold in July

LONDON, June 7 (UPI).— Botheby's will auction a hitherto unknown and unrecorded work by the 18th-century English portrait painter Thomas Gainsberough on July 19.

The painting, a portrait of the Grosvenor family, is being put up for sale by the daughters of the late Mai. James Townshend in whose home it hung, unknown to the art world, for nearly half a century.

WASHINGTON. -- One of the Sarah says. "It's made out to

"What are you going to do with 1,000 dollars, Sarah?" "I'm going to buy record tapes with it. There are 200 Rolling Stone albums I want so badly I could die."

Little Todd shouts: "Hot dog, a thousand dollars. Mom, how much bubble gum can you get for a thousand dollars?"

"Too much," Mrs. Amberson replies. "You're not going to spend your thousand dollars on bubble gum."

"Sean Reilly's mom lets him spend a thousand dollars on anything he wants to. Last year he bought his own Coke machine." "Would you believe a new washer and dryer?" Mrs. Amber-502 25ks "No, not even a new washer and dryer. This is not our money. It belongs to the government." Mr. Amberson cries.

"Why would the government send it to us if it didn't want us to have it?" Robert demands.

Because President McGovern believes it's easier to give 1,000 dollars to everyone and then have them give it back. In this way you don't have a welfare mess." "If I can't buy tapes with my 1,000 dollars," Sarah says, "I'm going to buy an airplane ticket to Japan, and you'll never hear from me again." Little Todd says: "I think I'll buy a color television act for my room with half of it, and with the other half I'll buy Sean Reilly's baseball cards."

"The children can do what they want with their checks," Mrs. Amberson says, "but I'm not giving this one back. I earned this 1.000 dollars." "How did you earn it?" Mr.

Amberson asks. "By working 18 hours a day, 365 days a year!"

"Please," Mr. Amberson been endorse the checks and give them to me. I'll put them in the bank and on April 15 we'll send them back to the government. Otherwise, I'll wind up going to jail."

There is dead silence in the dining room, Suddenly Sean Reilly comes in waving his check. "Hey Todd. I'll buy your roller skates for 1,000 dollars."

"Sold," Todd says. "Hurry up," Sean yells, before my dad finds out where I am."

The Picture No One Sees

By Leonard Greenwood

BRASILIA.—The suffering and misery of the Brazilian Northeast are shown in all their shocking intensity: the harsh-ness of the landscape, the cruel climate of heat and drought, the hunger of the people and the dreams of wealth and plenty that hunger and poverty provoke in man.

But the Brazilian film "O Pais de Sao Sarue" (The Country of Saint Sarue) assertedly portrays the land and the people with such profound understanding, capturing the beauty inherent even in these conditions with such honesty, that those who have seen it describe it as a work of art.

In the closely knit international world of the filmmaker, such reports spread quickly beyond the borders of Brazil. In France, Louis Marcorelles, coordinator of critics' week at the Cannes Film Festival, was so impressed by what he heard that he invited Vladimir Carvalho, a prize-winning documentary maker, to bring his film to Cannes to show it. The film was not shown at critics' week.

It might never be shown to anyone anywhere again. For the film is locked up here after Brazil's censors banned it. Carvelho has made several appeals to the Brazilian film censorship board to release the film, and he appealed again after the invitation from Marcorelles, but the board remained adament.

Carvalho, 37, a small, slim man whose quietness and shyness disguise his pas-sionate commitment to his art, says the censors told him they found the film harsh and shocking.

"I tried to explain that in the Northeast of Brazil the constant reality of life is very harsh and very shocking and that therefore the film is showing only the truth," Carvalho said. "But I think it must be very difficult for people who do not know the Northeast to understand that this land was conquered with great suffering and that this suffering shows in the lives and conditions of the people even today.

(The reality is indeed beyond the imagination of those who have not witnessed it. During the great drought of 1970, Brazilian President Emilio Garrastazu Medici, who comes from the prosperous southern state of Rio Grande do Sul, went to the Northeast to see conditions for himself. He had been well briefed by men who know the region but the president, visibly shaken by what he saw, said, "I have seen the misery and suffering. This cannot continue. It has to change.")

Viadimir Carvalho needs no briefing. He is a Nordestino, and he has known the poverty and the suffering at first hand from his childhood days in the little town of Itabaiana, in the state of Paraiba, one of the poorest and most backward in the Northeast.

"I feel intimately linked with the Northeast," he said, "and I feet a compossion to dedicate what talent I have to document the region. I am preoccupied with the originality of the Northeast, its character, its art and its history and the threat to these things from changing civilization. I want to document it before it disappears. I feel I have a special capacity—no, a responsibility—to do this."

Magic

The film is a blending of dream, fable, history and reality. Carvalho says it is full of magic. He presents the theme in the form of a documentary, using the history of the settlement of Sao Vicente in the Northeast to symbolize, on the level of reality, what is and what might be, and on the level of the fable, what is and what man dreams it might be.

The story Carvalho uses is a fable dreamed by a poor man. He dreams of a land with a sky of gold and an earth of aliver where rivers flow with milk and honey and where there is a never-ending supply of

"It seems to me that this story symbolises the dichotomy between the present poverty of the Northeast and its latent richness," says Carvalho, "and at the same time between the abject reality and the dreams of wealth and plenty conjured up in the minds of the poor and the hungry."

The film follows the history of Brazil's Northeast from the time when the rich and powerful took control of the fertile coastal strip to found sugar plantations, which survive to the present, three centuries later. It shows how the landless peasants pushed inland with their cattle into the barsh scrublands to establish the first of the three great economic cycles of the region, that of the animal. Then came the vegetable cycle, when man settled and began to raise crops. During the North American Civil War, the crops of the Northeast were concentrated more and more into cotton under the stimulus of high prices in Europe. Then again, due to another cutside stimulus-World War IIthere began the hunt for minerals.

"So we come to the case of Sao Vicente," says Carralho. "A farmer digging a hole for a fence post found gold. Within a few months there were 8,900 people camping there digging for gold, and the wealth of the region spread all over the country. But the gold seams ran out and most of the people left.

WHEN FLYING

Today, however, there are still 40 families living there, in the most terrible poverty but still dreaming that one day they are going to find more gold."

Carvelho's film did not have a screenplay, merely a flexible plan. It has no professional actors—only real characters that he found in his travels, because what he sought was "total naturalness."

Carraino today is a professor of philosophy and journalism at the Brazilian Pederal University in the capital, Brasilia. But he came from a poor family of furniture workers and small artisans. His mother had little formal education, but in a region where most people have none she found a job as a primary teacher.

His father, he says, made not utilitarian furniture, but beautifully decorated creations in wood. "From him I inherited a love of beautiful work, and this love of beauty comes out, I think, even when I am portraying the most tragic conditions. I always say what I feel in my work, but I doubt whether I have yet reached the stage where the form satisfies me." Carvalho would like one day to go into commercial film-making. O Pais de Sao Sarne," would, he is sure, have launched "A showing at Cannes could have worked wonders for the film-and for me," he says.

But now, he adds with a shrug, "it's too C Los Angeles Times
